BIBLICAL FAITH & HEALTH

GUIDEBOOK

Book Overview

This book serves as a guide for students of the NHMEC to become a Holistic Christian Herbalist from a Christian viewpoint. It does not intend to prescribe, diagnose, or offer medical treatment. Instead, its goal is to educate readers on utilizing natural resources like herbs, fields, and trees for promoting good health. While herbs do not cure ailments, they do support our bodies and assist in the natural healing process. Ultimately, God is seen as the ultimate healer in this context. The book is designed for educational purposes and is presented from a Christian standpoint.

The author, with over 30 years of experience across various modalities and training, incorporates all her knowledge into her teachings. Her extensive involvement in resources, ministries, companies, books, and classes is reflected in her instructional content.

BIBLICAL FAITH & HEALTH

As a Holistic Wellness Health Coach, Natural Health Consultant, Certified Nutritional Consultant, Herbalist, and student Iridologist, my journey has spanned over 30 years of study and exploration. However, most importantly, I am a Christian and a believer in God the Father, Jesus Christ the Son, and the comforter, the Holy Ghost. I believe that God wants us to be healthy, to prosper, and to be well in both our physical and spiritual bodies, and it is my calling to share my knowledge and experiences with you.

In my journey of over 30 years, I have realized the importance of staying grounded in the Bible's foundation of health and wellness for the physical body, spiritual body, and the soul. The soul is a complex entity that comprises the mind, will, and emotions, but we must not forget about the senses. The senses are our responses and activated feelings of the soul.

However, in my journey, I have found that the senses have often been overlooked as part of the soul. While the mind has been studied as the "heart of the soul," there is more to the heart of the soul. The processes and physical functions of the brain, such as what it holds, maintains, and produces, are crucial in understanding the soul's role in our overall health and well-being.

So, I invite you to come along with me in my journey of over 30 years and explore the connection between biblical faith and health. Let us delve deeper into the soul, understand the importance of the senses, and uncover the mysteries of the heart of the soul. Together, we can prosper and be well in both our physical and spiritual bodies, just as God intended.

(Keep in mind if you are viewing this online then as I go through a journey in my own personal life I will update, add to, change, edit, modify the contents within.)

LET'S BEGIN THIS JOURNEY

Let's start this journey by sharing some perspective and shedding light on the context. I will also say a prayer for those who are currently, will be, or have been a part of my journey. I hope you will continue to join me in this new adventure of my journey.

John 6:63 is a powerful verse from the New Testament in the Bible that has the potential to change our lives. In the King James Version, Jesus says, "It is the spirit that quickeneth; the flesh profiteth nothing: the words that I speak unto you, they are spirit, and they are life." This verse is a reminder that the words we speak have power, and they can either bring life or death.

The verses shared in this journey are inspired by the Holy Ghost and will be breathed into you as you read them reverently, slowly drinking in the main verse. This journey is like a "medicine bottle that contains God's pills of health," His word, in a form that is palatable for us. We can minister God's healing power into our bodies by immersing ourselves in His word.

Studying the scriptures with a different perspective about health has caused the verses to come alive. My mind is getting a protocol that has life and vitality with an expected end. This vitality opens up a sense of awareness and a fresh, interesting way of thinking. My eyes become enlightened by what the Holy Ghost reveals to me. Although my journey has not been easy, and I have become weary in well-doing, I choose to persevere and do what I feel God has called me to do. He wants us to be in health!

Through this journey, my love for God's word has increased, and I pray that through my journey, your own personal journey will be enlightened and increased. The word of God has become a faceted application to my physical and spiritual body.

It is essential that I take time to fully swallow up, utilize, store, and share the enlightenment that I have gained. I have allowed the "rain" to be a slow, steady soak, even though I have experienced hail, drought, a small desert, and maybe a sandstorm. I must keep my mind focused by speaking, hearing, listening, and seeing God's words. I have learned to perceive God's words as a "pill" that leads to healing, and it will continue as I intake them.

LET'S BEGIN THIS JOURNEY

As we journey through life, we will encounter various challenges that will try to weaken our faith and cause us to doubt ourselves. However, we must remember that God is with us every step of the way, and His word is a powerful tool that we can use to overcome any obstacle. By immersing ourselves in His word in Jesus name, we can gain the strength and courage we need to face whatever comes our way.

In conclusion, the journey of life is not always easy, but we can find solace in God's word. Let us take time to immerse ourselves in His word, and allow the "medicine" to do its work in our lives. As we do so, we will experience healing, growth, and an increased sense of awareness that will enable us to live life to the fullest.

FATHER,
I PRAY FOR THOSE WHO WILL, WHO IS, AND WHO WILL JOIN (JOINING) ME IN MY JOURNEY, WHO WILL READ AND FEED ON YOUR WORD IN THIS JOURNEY. HELP THEM TO ABSORB THE LIFE IN EACH VERSE, WORK HEALING IN THEM... PHYSICALLY, MENTALLY, AND EMOTIONALLY. ALLOW OUR HEARTS TO HEAR THE WORDS OF GOD. ALLOW OUR MIND TO PERCEIVE THE THINGS OF GOD. ALLOW OUR HEARTS TO BELIEVE IN GODS WORD. ALLOW OUR PHYSICAL BODIES TO RECEIVE HEALING. BY JESUS STRIPES, HEALING HAS BEEN PROVIDED... BY THE BLOOD THAT FLOWED DOWN FROM HIS CROSS. FATHER, THANK YOU FOR THE HEALINGS THAT WILL BE RECEIVED, AND MANIFESTED THAT WILL FOLLOW THE SCRIPTURES IN GOD'S WORD THAT WAS PROVIDED FOR BY THE CROSS. IN JESUS NAME I PRAY. AMEN

Let the Glory of the Lord Arise
Heavenly Father, we humbly come before You and earnestly seek Your divine presence in our lives. Just as it is written in Isaiah 60 verse 2, we ask that You graciously allow the abundant and magnificent Glory of the Lord to ascend upon each and every one of us. Lord, we fervently implore You to manifest Your glorious presence in a powerful and tangible way, so that Your Glory may radiate and shine forth from within us. We humbly ask, dear Heavenly Father, that You envelop us in Your resplendent Glory, saturating every fiber of our being with Your divine light and love. May Your Glory be a visible and undeniable testimony of Your mercy, grace, and majesty in our lives. We long to experience the overwhelming presence of Your Glory, knowing that it will transform us and draw others closer to You. Heavenly Father, we surrender ourselves to Your will and eagerly await the manifestation of Your Glory in our lives. Amen.

JOURNEY #1-GOD'S WORD

As I begin my journey I want to start at the beginning, and the beginning is God's word. God is the alpha & omega. He is the beginning and the end. His word is everlasting. His word become alive through Jesus. His word became a new covenant filled with promises. His word became an inheritance for the now, the next, and the new generations to come.

The scripture from Proverbs 4:20-22 in the King James Version Bible reads: "My son, attend to my words; incline thine ear unto my sayings. Let them not depart from thine eyes; keep them in the midst of thine heart. For they are life unto those that find them, and health to all their flesh."

The text is a reference to a verse from the King James Version of the Hebrew Bible, specifically Proverbs 4:20-22. The verse encourages the reader to pay close attention to the words being spoken, keeping them in their heart, as they are "life unto those that find them, and health to all their flesh."

What's interesting about this verse is that the Hebrew word used for "health" in verse 22 is actually "medicine." This means that the verse is not simply talking about physical health in a general sense, but is specifically referring to the idea of medicine as a means of healing and restoration.

This use of language highlights the importance of medicine in Hebrew culture, and also emphasizes the idea that the words of the Bible are not just meant to be read and understood, but to be put into practice as a means of achieving true health and well-being.

Exodus 15:26 in the King James Version of the Bible reads: "And said, If thou wilt diligently hearken to the voice of the Lord thy God, and wilt do that which is right in his sight, and wilt give ear to his commandments, and keep all his statutes, I will put none of these diseases upon thee, which I have brought upon the Egyptians: for I am the Lord that healeth thee."

The medicine that Proverbs describes is the word of God. Exodus describes God as our great physician. God's word must be consumed like medicine. It must be read, spoken, believed, received, understood, and hidden in one's heart. His well must be drunk from to consume in His healing presence and manifest the process of healing. Therefore, God's medicine is His word, and Jesus became the living word of God.

There are four perspectives on the beginning of the journey of God's medicine and natural medicine.

#1- God's word is a healing agent, just as natural medicine is a catalyst. God's word inherently contains the capacity, energy, ability, and nature to effect healing within our bodies.

As a Christian, it is important to be cautious when studying herbals, flowers, and natural medicine. One must be mindful of the original theory behind each modality and ensure that it aligns with the Bible. God is our healer, and Jesus is the sacrifice, so anything that goes against the word of God must be avoided. In the spiritual realm, we must also be careful to avoid witchcraft, sorcery, and idol gods. Many modalities are based on earth worship, creation worship, and other similar practices, which can be harmful to one's spiritual health. However, these are simply my thoughts, and you may choose to use your own discernment regarding the modalities that you partake in.

Psalms 107:20 states "He sent his word, and healed them, and delivered them from their destructions."

Psalms 107:20 is a powerful verse from the King James Version of the Bible that speaks to the healing power of God's Word. The verse declares that when the people cried out to God in their distress, He heard their cries and sent His Word to heal them and rescue them from their destructions.

JOURNEY #1-GOD'S WORD

This verse is a reminder that God's Word is not just a collection of stories and teachings, but a powerful tool for healing and restoration, esp. in spiritual warfare. It emphasizes the importance of turning to God in times of trouble and relying on His Word & Holy Ghost to bring us comfort, guidance, and the manifestation of healing.

As we meditate on this verse, we can be reminded that God is always ready and willing to provide the manifestation to heal us, both physically and spiritually. All we need to do is turn to Him and trust in His Word, which has the power to transform our lives and bring us into a place of wholeness and peace.

So if you are struggling with illness, pain, or any other kind of distress, take heart in the promise of Psalms 107:20. Cry out to God and trust in Him and His promises, you can be confident that He will bring you into a place of health, wholeness, and peace. In this scripture remember that Jesus became the living word of God so therefore Jesus 'bought' our healing upon the cross, then he took the brokenness and turned it into authority as he took back death, hell, and the grave keys and then presented them to us all while providing yet another gift the comforter, the Holy Ghost.

Isaiah 55:10 & 11 states;

10 For as the rain cometh down, and the snow from heaven, and returneth not thither, but watereth the earth, and maketh it bring forth and bud, that it may give seed to the sower, and bread to the eater:

11 So shall my word be that goeth forth out of my mouth: it shall not return unto me void, but it shall accomplish that which I please, and it shall prosper in the thing whereto I sent it.

The healing scriptures contained in the Bible are a powerful tool for achieving physical, emotional, and spiritual healing. These scriptures contain within them the capacity to produce healing, and when we read and meditate on them, we open ourselves up to the transformative power of God's word.

It is important to remember that God's word is not just a collection of stories and teachings, but a powerful tool for healing and restoration. The scripture encourages us to pay close attention to the words being spoken, keeping them in our hearts, as they bring life and health to our bodies and souls.

Furthermore, the Hebrew word used for "health" in Proverbs 4:22 is actually "medicine." This means that the verse is not simply talking about physical health in a general sense, but is specifically referring to the idea of medicine as a means of healing and restoration. This highlights the importance of medicine in Hebrew culture and emphasizes the idea that the words of the Bible are not just meant to be read and understood, but to be put into practice as a means of achieving true health and well-being.

It is also important to note that God's word is a healing agent, just as natural medicine is a catalyst. God's word inherently contains the capacity, energy, ability, and nature to effect healing within our bodies. Therefore, as we meditate on the healing scriptures, we can be reminded that God is always ready and willing to heal us, both physically and spiritually. All we need to do is turn to Him and trust in His Word, which has the power to transform our lives and bring us into a place of wholeness and peace.

Therefore, we should always remember that God's word contains the power to produce what it says it will perform. By meditating on these healing scriptures, we can draw closer to God and experience the transformative power of His word in our lives.

JOURNEY #1-GOD'S WORD

#2 - Medicine is no respecter of persons for it will work for anyone who will take of it. We must receive healing by taking the 'medicine' that produces it, that brings it into manifestation. It isn't of God is willing or not willing for He is. Why would He send His only son to die for us if He did not want you to be in health, to be well, to be the recipient of His medicine- His word - His promises.

#3 - Medicine must be taken as directed to be most effective. Usually after a meal for if you take it before a meal (before getting into the word) it will be less effective because it doesn't have the meat to chew on that releases saliva glands that released digestive enzymes to help the body absorb and take in the nutrients and benefits from the substance. You are prepping yourself to eat the whole roll. It is important that our digestive systems digest well, and our intestines are able to absorb what we put in taking as directed which includes how many times per day it must be administered which is very important. Taking your medicine every now and then isn't going to profit much but taking 'the medicine' the increase everyday several times a day will build up a supply of that medicine within and it will provide an immunity for anything that is opposite. It must be taken as directed or it won't profit much.

The directions for taking God's medicine is stated in Proverbs 4:20 & 21 & 21:1; and it states;

"My son, attend to my words; incline thine ear unto my sayings."

"Let them not depart from thine eyes; keep them in the midst of thine heart."

1. attend to them
2. incline your ear to them
3. don't let them depart from before your eyes
4. keep them in the midst of your heart

It is as only as the word gets in the midst of our hearts, and it remaining there that it will produce healing in the body. The healing verses are going to have to penetrate, and filter into our spirit, into our soul, into the heart of the soul, in the inner man through meditation, attending, hearing, looking, listening, abiding, reading, seeing, living, pondering to produce the manifestation of the healing within. Once the words due indeed penetrate straight to within the inner man, to the core in all honesty and acknowledgment it will bring health to the flesh- as God 's word states.

God's way of healing is spiritual for the healing power comes by the scriptures, His living word which is Jesus. Jesus provided the way of healing, the authority of healing, and the permission of healing upon that cross. Jesus became the living word of God and took those stripes for our healing, took that crown of thorns for our soul healing, and took that spear to the side for our inward internal healing. God provided the healing, Jesus performed it, declared it, and set it in place, and finished it. God then provided a comforter for His people to survive the word rudiments of life.

In my journey instead of me claiming my healing I have learned to receive my healing for it was finished upon that cross. Jesus rose up out of that tomb for me. He folded his napkin as a statement that he would be back. He was dog tired, beaten unreal, in severe pain, had no energy to even talk, his flesh torn to unrecognition, his entire body was unbearable to look upon, he was naked and shamed but he still got up from that tomb for me. It didn't matter how he felt he got up. He did that for me and you. He had to then proceed with God's plan and finish with ascension to heaven. So when you hear someone say I claim my healing, stop them right there and say oh but wait, why are you claiming a future benefit when it has already been finished. Receive the gift in its entirety for it was freely given. The manifestation of the healing is what we need to look for today. So if I say healing in this book it is referring to the manifestation of that healing for the healing has already been finished we just have to accept that God's word is true.

JOURNEY #1-GOD'S WORD

If we say we are claiming it then we go back under the law, the old way of receiving a healing. The new covenant was to fulfill the old covenant and bring it to completion so therefore let's not stay under the law but lets put on the perspective of what was finished upon the cross and all of the benefits that came with it. We must stand on God's words & promises but with the perspective of the new covenant to reach total manifestation of healing.

Rather than wondering if you have enough faith for the manifestation of the healing to come- take your medicine as directed, perceive, believe, and receive. Trust God in the process of the manifestation for some healings are a process of peeling back the layers of a corruptible seed.

1 Thessalonians 2:13

"For this cause also thank we God without ceasing, because, when ye received the word of God which ye heard of us, ye received it not as the word of men, but as it is in truth, the word of God, which effectually worketh also in you that believe."

Luke 9:11

"And the people, when they knew it, followed him: and he received them, and spake unto them of the kingdom of God, and healed them that had need of healing."

#4 - Yes, sometimes it takes time for the manifestation to come. I have caught myself growing weary of waiting because I hadn't gotten the perspective that I needed yet or I hadn't gotten to the place within that I needed to acknowledge what I needed. Some medicines it takes time to build up, break down insoluble layers where fat and water do not mix, takes time to be absorbed within the body, to chew on it a little while, to meditate upon the inner meaning, to recognize that the light bulb just flickered.

People can spend their entire life savings on medicine for the body, & soul. Natural medicine can be expensive but pharmaceuticals have taken more than that. In natural medicine it takes time for the herbal preparation to build up a collection of constituents that the plant contains what is needed. It takes months to filter though where the natural medicine is needed for the body to help heal its self.

When you take a natural or a pharmaceutical you usually get refills each month or so. We must refill God's medicine as well. You have to look at the bottle see that tiny little number, then call or click it in for a refill, then you wait for the medicine, then you read the directions, you may or may not read the little pamphlet that states all of the side affects, the safety guidelines, the drug interactions, the warnings, the expected outcome of it may or may not or what it may cause later on, then how often, what times, and how many times per day, then you see the limitation of not being exposed to or not driving or operating machinery, etc... the list goes on. But with God's medicine the outcome is increase, the outcome is an expected end, the product is perfected, the result is health & wellness for the triparted man.

Keep taking God's medicine & give it time to work. Be still and see the salvation of God.

Acts 10:38

"How God anointed Jesus of Nazareth with the Holy Ghost and with power: who went about doing good, and healing all that were oppressed of the devil; for God was with him."

2 Corinthians 4:11

"For we which live are alway delivered unto death for Jesus' sake, that the life also of Jesus might be made manifest in our mortal flesh."

JOURNEY #2 - WHOLENESS

Welcome to Journey #2. Thank you for joining me. In this journey, we will explore the definition and concept of wholeness, which was God's original plan for his people.

Wholeness refers to complete well-being in all aspects of the human person, including the body, soul (mind, will, and emotions), and spirit. It is the state of being perfectly well in all of these areas. This was God's original design for humanity before the fall, and it is now attainable once we join Jesus in heaven.

The pursuit of wholeness is a lifelong journey that involves both physical and spiritual practices. To take care of our physical bodies, we can eat well, exercise, and get enough rest. We can also take care of our minds and emotions by engaging in activities that promote mental and emotional health, such as meditation, counseling, or spending time with loved ones. Moreover, we can connect with God through prayer, meditation, and reading the Bible. The Holy Spirit can work in our lives to transform our hearts, minds, and spirits, bringing us closer to wholeness every day.

In Christian circles, people often say, "I'm whole in Christ," or "Christ has made me whole." This means they believe they have attained complete well-being in all aspects of their personhood, thanks to their faith in Jesus Christ. However, the concept of "wholeness" goes beyond physical health or the absence of illness. It encompasses all the components that make up an entity or system, not just the sum of its parts. When we say something is "whole," we mean it is not divided or disjoined. It is complete and sound, with all its interrelated parts functioning properly.

From a Biblical perspective, "wholeness" is the state of being in which our physical bodies are healthy, our minds are clear and sound, our emotions are stable and healthy, and our spirits are alive and connected with God. The pursuit of wholeness is a journey that we can embark on every day towards complete well-being in all aspects of our personhood.

In this journey, we will also look into the sin of the fall of man, restorations, prayer, and a glorified body. Adam and Eve were the epitome of wholeness from a whole-person health perspective. God made them as complete and "whole" beings, with each part of them intricately interwoven with the other in a marvelous way. They were a masterpiece. However, the perfect design of man was destroyed when Adam and Eve sinned in the Garden of Eden. The image of God, which was once perfectly knitted and intact spirit, soul, and body, became marred. Each one of us was born into this world as flawed and imperfect beings because we inherited this from Adam and Eve.

Salvation is the first step toward regaining complete wholeness in mind, body, and spirit, as Adam and Eve were before the fall. When a person accepts Jesus into their heart, they are rescued from sin and eternal separation from God. God puts His Spirit into our hearts, and our spirits become fully alive. Throughout our life on earth, our spirits will bear the image of God, and we will be completely well in spirit. We are positionally sanctified from a spiritual perspective.

However, aspects of our being that have been tainted by sin require healing and restoration. The different parts of our soul—our mind, will, and emotions—are marred and require an overhaul. It's by the work of the Holy Spirit within us that we have the opportunity to progress in our souls toward even greater wholeness. Our marred emotions, will, and thinking can be transformed by the sanctifying work of the Holy Spirit in our lives. As we surrender more and more to the Spirit of God, He can work accordingly in our lives. Sanctification is a process. We become transformed or renewed, day by day, into the likeness of Jesus.

JOURNEY #2 - WHOLENESS

Our responsibility is to purify ourselves from all that contaminates us, to take an active role in "stripping off all that hinders us" so that we can better bear the full image of Christ that Adam and Eve once had before they sinned. This is God's desire for us. We are to "work out our salvation" that began when we were initially saved. We do this by surrendering more deeply to God. We humble ourselves and acknowledge our dependence on Him. We are more obedient to His ways. We hunger and thirst for more of Christ, and we die more to our self-nature.

The process of restoration or healing, especially of our hearts, is also a part of the journey towards wholeness. Various issues of the heart prevent us from being able to be like Jesus. Damaged emotions, belief in lies—especially Satan's lies—and unhealed relationships all contribute to our inability to live a life fully glorifying to God the Father. The more we allow Christ into the places of our hearts and minds, the greater opportunity we have to be restored or healed. Healing and restoration are part of the sanctification process. The more healing we experience—especially on the inside—the more our lives will bear the fruit of the Spirit. As this occurs, our lives become a better witness or ambassador for Christ.

When Jesus returns to earth, those who follow Him will be raised into heaven and receive new glorified bodies, making us whole in spirit, mind, and body. In heaven, we will be in a state of perfect wholeness, and God will be magnificently glorified. As followers of Jesus, we hold on to this hope and continue to work towards it every day, knowing that we are on a journey towards complete wholeness in all aspects of our personhood.

WHOLENESS DEFINITIONS

Definition of 'Wholeness' According to the Miriam Webster Dictionary - The condition of being sound in body. The "Wholeness" is the quality or state of being without restriction, exception, or qualification. It refers to complete well-being in all aspects of the human person, including the body, soul (mind, will, and emotions), and spirit. In Christian circles, people often say, "I'm whole in Christ," or "Christ has made me whole." This means they believe they have attained complete well-being in all aspects of their personhood, thanks to their faith in Jesus Christ.

However, the concept of "wholeness" goes beyond physical health or the absence of illness. It encompasses all the components that make up an entity or system, not just the sum of its parts. When we say something is "whole," we mean it is not divided or disjoined. It is complete and sound, with all its interrelated parts functioning properly.

From a Biblical perspective, "wholeness" is the state of being perfectly well in all of these areas. This was God's original design for humanity before the fall, and it is now attainable once we join Jesus in heaven. In other words, "wholeness" is the state of being in which our physical bodies are healthy, our minds are clear and sound, our emotions are stable and healthy, and our spirits are alive and connected with God.

The pursuit of "wholeness" is a lifelong journey that involves both physical and spiritual practices. To take care of our physical bodies, we can eat well, exercise, and get enough rest. We can also take care of our minds and emotions by engaging in activities that promote mental and emotional health, such as meditation, counseling, or spending time with loved ones.

Moreover, we can connect with God through prayer, meditation, and reading the Bible. The Holy Spirit can work in our lives to transform our hearts, minds, and spirits, bringing us closer to "wholeness" every day. By practicing physical and spiritual habits that promote complete well-being, we can embark on a journey towards "wholeness" that is both fulfilling and attainable.

WHOLENESS - GOD'S ORIGINAL DESIGN FOR MAN

The concept of "wholeness" is a critical one in Christian theology and philosophy, and it is rooted in the creation story found in the Bible. According to the book of Genesis, God formed man from the dust of the ground and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life, and man became a living being. This act of creation is significant because it highlights the unique nature of human beings, who possess both a physical body and a spiritual nature with a soul.

The idea of being "whole" refers to complete well-being in all aspects of the human person, including the body, soul (mind, will, and emotions), and spirit. This was God's original design for humanity before the fall, and it is attainable once we join Jesus in heaven. In other words, "wholeness" is not just a state of being, but a journey that we can embark on every day towards complete well-being in all aspects of our personhood.

Adam and Eve were the epitome of wholeness from a whole-person health perspective. God made them as complete and "whole" beings, with each part of them intricately interwoven with the other in a marvelous way. They were a masterpiece. The Bible says that God created man in his image and likeness, including his Son. When Adam and Eve were created, they were without blemish and had no shame because they were sinless.

However, the perfect design of man was destroyed when Adam and Eve sinned in the Garden of Eden. The image of God, which was once perfectly knitted and intact spirit, soul, and body, became marred. Each one of us was born into this world as flawed and imperfect beings because we inherited this from Adam and Eve.

WHOLENESS - GOD'S ORIGINAL DESIGN FOR MAN

Thus, the pursuit of "wholeness" is a lifelong journey that involves both physical and spiritual practices. We can take care of our physical bodies by eating well, exercising, and getting enough rest. We can also take care of our minds and emotions by engaging in activities that promote mental and emotional health, such as meditation, counseling, or spending time with loved ones.

Moreover, we can connect with God through prayer, meditation, and reading the Bible. The Holy Spirit can work in our lives to transform our hearts, minds, and spirits, bringing us closer to "wholeness" every day. As we surrender more and more to the Spirit of God, He can work accordingly in our lives, transforming our marred emotions, will, and thinking. Sanctification is a process that involves surrendering ourselves to God, purifying ourselves from all that contaminates us, and humbling ourselves to acknowledge our dependence on Him.

Finally, when Jesus returns to earth, we will be raised into heaven and receive new glorified bodies, making us whole in spirit, mind, and body. In heaven, we will be in a state of perfect wholeness, and God will be magnificently glorified.

HOLISM

Holistic methods aim to support the whole person, not just their symptoms. Holistic consultants take into consideration the person's physical, emotional, and spiritual well-being when creating a treatment plan. By focusing on the root cause of the illness, rather than just the symptoms, holistic consultants strive to restore balance and harmony to the body. This includes addressing lifestyle factors such as diet, exercise, and stress management, in addition to traditional medical treatments.

Furthermore, holistic consultants recognize that the body has an innate ability to heal itself. Rather than solely relying on medication or invasive treatments, holistic consultants work with the body's natural healing processes to facilitate recovery. This can include the use of natural remedies, such as herbal supplements or acupuncture.

As a believer, I also acknowledge the role of God in the healing process. I believe that Jesus' blood has the power to heal and that prayer can be an important component of a holistic treatment plan. By addressing the physical, emotional, and spiritual aspects of a person, holistic methods can provide a more comprehensive and effective approach to healing.

ORIGINAL SIN

When Adam and Eve sinned in the Garden of Eden, the perfect design of man was destroyed. This caused a ripple effect, ultimately resulting in the flawed and imperfect nature we all possess today. However, the impact of this event was not limited to just the physical body. The spiritual aspect of a person was also affected, resulting in a dead spirit for those who have not been saved (Romans 5:15-17) is a reference to a section of the Christian Bible, specifically the book of Romans, chapter 5, verses 15-17. This passage discusses the concept of sin and salvation through Jesus Christ..

In addition to being impacted by the sin present in the world, our own sinful behaviors create an adverse environment that affects our emotional, mental, and physical well-being. This can manifest in a variety of ways, from feelings of guilt and shame to physical health issues. It is important to recognize the impact of sin in all aspects of our lives, and to actively work towards overcoming it and striving for a better, more fulfilling life.

SALVATION, SANCTIFICATION AND RESTORATION

When a person accepts Jesus into their heart, they are rescued from sin and eternal separation from God. This is referred to as salvation, which comes from the Greek word sozo. God puts His Spirit into our hearts (2 Corinthians 1:22), and our spirits become fully alive. Throughout our life on earth, our spirits will bear the image of God, and we will be completely well in spirit. We are positionally sanctified from a spiritual perspective (Acts 26:18, 1 Corinthians 1:2, 6:11, 2 Thessalonians 2:13).

Salvation is the first step toward regaining complete wholeness in mind, body, and spirit, as Adam and Eve were before the fall. Although we become a "new creation" in Jesus (2 Corinthians 5:17), aspects of our being that have been tainted by sin require healing and restoration.

The different parts of our soul—our mind, will, and emotions—are marred and require an overhaul. It's by the work of the Holy Spirit within us that we have the opportunity to progress in our souls toward even greater wholeness. Our marred emotions, will, and thinking can be transformed by the sanctifying work of the Holy Spirit in our lives. As we surrender more and more to the Spirit of God, He can work accordingly in our lives. Sanctification is a process. We become transformed or renewed, day by day, into the likeness of Jesus (2 Corinthians 3:18 and 4:6).

Our responsibility is to purify ourselves from all that contaminates us (2 Corinthians 7:1), to take an active role in "stripping off all that hinders us" (Hebrews 12:1), so that we can better bear the full image of Christ that Adam and Eve once had before they sinned. This is God's desire for us (Romans 8:29). We are to "work out our salvation" (Philippians 2:12) that began when we were initially saved. We do this by surrendering more deeply to God. We humble ourselves and acknowledge our dependence on Him. We are more obedient to His ways. We hunger and thirst for more of Christ, and we die more to our self-nature (Galatians 5:24, Luke 9:23).

This is also a process of restoration or healing, especially of our hearts. Various issues of the heart prevent us from being able to be like Jesus. Damaged emotions, belief in lies—especially Satan's lies—and unhealed relationships all contribute to our inability to live a life like Christ, one that fully glorifies God the Father. The more we allow Christ into the places of our hearts and minds, the greater opportunity we have to be restored or healed. Healing and restoration are part of the sanctification process. The more healing we experience—especially on the inside—the more our lives will bear the fruit of the Spirit. As this occurs, our lives become a better witness or ambassador for Christ (2 Corinthians 5:11-21).

Not only our souls but also our bodies can be in varying degrees of health, wellness, or state of wholeness. Even if they appear to be healthy on the outside, there may be subtle things occurring on the inside that are not well. And I imagine that none of us have completely healthy behaviors all the time. None of us fully live out Paul's encouragement to us in Romans 12:1—"... I plead with you to give your bodies to God. Let them be a living and holy sacrifice—the kind he will accept. When you think of what he has done for you, is this too much to ask?"

The Apostle Paul makes it clear that our bodies groan and are burdened (2 Corinthians 4:16-17 and 5:4). He also tells us that we eagerly await the second coming of our savior, who will then transform our 'lowly' bodies so that they will be like Jesus' 'glorious' body.

As we live life on this earth, we have the opportunity to be more and more transformed into the image of Christ—the original state of Adam and Eve before the fall—with ever-increasing glory (greater wholeness). This process involves continuing to grow in faith, hope, and love, and trusting in God's promises and faithfulness.

PRAYERS FOR YOU

As Paul prayed for the Thessalonians, my prayer for you is that God himself, the God of peace, will sanctify you through and through - in your whole spirit, soul, and body. This means that I hope for you to experience complete well-being in all aspects of your personhood, including physical health, mental and emotional stability, and a strong, vibrant connection with God.

Sanctification is a process that involves surrendering ourselves to God, purifying ourselves from all that contaminates us, and humbling ourselves to acknowledge our dependence on Him. It is a journey towards complete wholeness that we can embark on every day.

The pursuit of wholeness is a lifelong journey that involves both physical and spiritual practices. We can take care of our physical bodies by eating well, exercising, and getting enough rest. We can also take care of our minds and emotions by engaging in activities that promote mental and emotional health, such as meditation, counseling, or spending time with loved ones. Moreover, we can connect with God through prayer, meditation, and reading the Bible.

The Holy Spirit can work in our lives to transform our hearts, minds, and spirits, bringing us closer to wholeness every day. As we surrender more and more to the Spirit of God, He can work in our lives, transforming our marred emotions, will, and thinking. Our responsibility is to purify ourselves from all that contaminates us, to take an active role in "stripping off all that hinders us," so that we can better bear the full image of Christ that Adam and Eve once had before they sinned.

Salvation is the first step toward regaining complete wholeness in mind, body, and spirit, as Adam and Eve were before the fall. Although we become a "new creation" in Jesus (2 Corinthians 5:17), aspects of our being that have been tainted by sin require healing and restoration. This is where we can pray for "God, who has begun a good work within you, to continue his work of restoration, healing, and transformation until it is finally finished on the day when Christ Jesus returns."

When Jesus returns to earth, we will be raised into heaven and receive new glorified bodies, making us whole in spirit, mind, and body. In heaven, we will be in a state of perfect wholeness, and God will be magnificently glorified. As followers of Jesus, we hold on to this hope and work towards it every day, knowing that we are on a journey towards complete wholeness in all aspects of our personhood.

Therefore, my prayer for you is that you will continue to pursue wholeness, surrendering yourself to God every day, and that "God himself, the God of peace, will sanctify you through and through - in your whole spirit, soul, and body." 1 Thessalonians 5:23 and that "God, who has begun a good work within you, will continue his work of restoration, healing, and transformation until it is finally finished on the day when Christ Jesus returns." Philippians 1:6.

WHOLENESS IN HEAVEN - A GLORIFIED BODY

According to the Bible, when Jesus returns to Earth, those who follow Him will be raised into heaven and receive new glorified bodies. These bodies will bear the likeness of Jesus himself.

The apostle Paul wrote in Philippians 3:21 that Jesus will "change our humble bodies and make them like his glorified body." This means that we will no longer experience sickness, pain, or any other physical ailment. Instead, our bodies will be transformed into perfect, whole, and complete vessels that reflect the glory of God.

In 1 John 3:2, the apostle John wrote, "Dear friends, now we are children of God, and what we will be has not yet been made known. But we know that when Christ appears, we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is." This verse reminds us that we are already children of God, and that our ultimate destiny is to become like Jesus in every way. This includes being transformed into His image in both body and spirit.

As followers of Jesus, we can take comfort in the fact that we will one day be in heaven, in a state of perfect wholeness in spirit, mind, and body. This means that we will be free from all physical and emotional pain, and that we will experience complete well-being in all aspects of our personhood.

The pursuit of wholeness is a lifelong journey that involves both physical and spiritual practices. We can take care of our physical bodies by eating well, exercising, and getting enough rest. We can also take care of our minds and emotions by engaging in activities that promote mental and emotional health, such as meditation, counseling, or spending time with loved ones. Moreover, we can connect with God through prayer, meditation, and reading the Bible.

As we surrender more and more to the Holy Spirit, He can work in our lives, transforming our marred emotions, will, and thinking. Our responsibility is to purify ourselves from all that contaminates us, to take an active role in "stripping off all that hinders us," so that we can better bear the full image of Christ that Adam and Eve once had before they sinned.

Ultimately, when Jesus returns to Earth, we will be raised into heaven and receive new glorified bodies, making us whole in spirit, mind, and body. In heaven, we will be in a state of perfect wholeness, and God will be magnificently glorified. As followers of Jesus, we hold on to this hope and continue to work towards it every day, knowing that we are on a journey towards complete wholeness in all aspects of our personhood.

Wholeness refers to complete well-being in all aspects of the human person, including the body, soul (mind, will, and emotions), and spirit. Pursuing wholeness is a lifelong journey that involves physical and spiritual practices, such as taking care of our bodies, minds, and emotions, connecting with God through prayer and meditation, and surrendering ourselves to the Holy Spirit. Salvation is the first step towards regaining complete wholeness in mind, body, and spirit, as Adam and Eve were before the fall. When Jesus returns to Earth, those who follow Him will be raised into heaven and receive new glorified bodies, making us whole in spirit, mind, and body.

JOURNEY #3 - THREE PARTS OF MAN

Welcome to Journey #3 - Three Parts of Man we will delve into the tripartite man. In this journey is is important to have a few study notes available for you to refer to.

To have a complete understanding of the human being, it is necessary to examine the spirit, soul, and body separately. The most fundamental part is the spirit, which plays an essential role in man's communication with God. Through his spirit, he can worship, serve and have a deep understanding of God. The soul, on the other hand, is responsible for shaping the personality of the individual and allows them to function in the psychological realm. It influences how we think, feel, and behave. Finally, the physical body, with its five senses, enables us to experience the physical world. Its senses allow us to perceive the environment, interact with others, and understand the world around us.

In this document, we will examine each one of these three parts in detail and see how they are defined throughout Scripture. We will explore how the spirit, soul, and body interact with each other and contribute to the overall well-being of the individual. By understanding these three components, we can have a better understanding of the human being and how they relate to God and the world we live in.

RESTORING HEALTH

Each individual's journey towards restoring their health is unique, as it depends on their specific constitution, imbalance, strengths, & weaknesses. This means that even if two people exhibit the same constitution and imbalance, their approach to optimal health will differ.

In order to achieve optimal health, it is crucial to embrace a holistic perspective. Instead of solely focusing on identifying systematic issues our main objective should be to restore homeostasis - the balance within the body.

The process of restoring health is essentially synonymous with restoring homeostasis. By addressing the root causes of imbalances and promoting overall well-being, we pave the way towards true healing.

It is at most importance to understand the person who is experiencing the issues, rather than solely focusing on the systematic issues. This highlights the significance of embracing a comprehensive approach to health, one that acknowledges the interconnectedness of mind, body, and spirit. By doing so, we can embark on a journey towards holistic whole health, guided by divine principles.

HIPPOCAMPUS

The hippocampus is a small but incredibly important part of the brain, playing a crucial role in the formation and retrieval of memories, as well as spatial navigation. Located in the temporal lobe, it is a seahorse-shaped structure that is essential to our ability to remember and learn new information.

The hippocampus is responsible for converting short-term memories into long-term memories, a process known as memory consolidation. It does this by coordinating with other parts of the brain to encode and store information, creating neural pathways that allow us to access and retrieve memories later on. Without the hippocampus, our ability to remember and learn new information would be severely impaired.

In addition to its role in memory formation and retrieval, the hippocampus is also involved in spatial navigation. It helps us to create mental maps of our surroundings, allowing us to navigate through our environment and remember where we have been. It does this by integrating information from our senses, such as visual and auditory cues, with our memories and our sense of direction.

The hippocampus is also thought to be involved in a wide range of other cognitive processes, including emotional regulation, decision-making, and creativity. Studies have shown that damage to the hippocampus can lead to a variety of cognitive and behavioral problems, including memory loss, disorientation, and difficulty learning new information.

Overall, the hippocampus is a small but incredibly important part of the brain that plays a crucial role in our ability to remember, learn, and navigate through our environment. Without it, many of our cognitive functions would be severely impaired, highlighting the importance of this tiny but mighty structure.

HYPOTHALAMUS

The hypothalamus is a small but complex area in the brain that plays a crucial role in many bodily functions. It is a part of the limbic system and is located at the base of the brain, just above the brainstem. Despite its small size, the hypothalamus controls a wide range of important physiological processes, including regulating body temperature, hunger and thirst, and controlling the release of hormones from the pituitary gland.

One of the most important functions of the hypothalamus is regulating body temperature. It does this by sensing changes in the temperature of the blood and then initiating responses to either increase or decrease body temperature as needed. For example, when the body is too hot, the hypothalamus sends signals to the blood vessels to dilate, allowing more blood to flow to the skin, which helps to dissipate heat. It also triggers the production of sweat, which cools the body as it evaporates.

The hypothalamus is also responsible for regulating hunger and thirst. It does this by monitoring the levels of various hormones and nutrients in the blood, as well as the level of hydration in the body. When the body needs food or water, the hypothalamus sends signals to the brain that trigger hunger or thirst, respectively. When we eat or drink, the hypothalamus sends signals to the brain to stop these sensations, helping to maintain a healthy balance of nutrients and fluids in the body.

Another important function of the hypothalamus is controlling the release of hormones from the pituitary gland. The hypothalamus produces a variety of hormones that act on the pituitary gland, which in turn releases hormones that control many other bodily functions, including growth, metabolism, and reproduction.

In addition to these functions, the hypothalamus is also involved in regulating sleep and wake cycles, controlling the release of stress hormones, and playing a role in emotional responses. Overall, the hypothalamus is a small but incredibly important part of the brain that plays a crucial role in maintaining homeostasis, or balance, in the body.

THE DEFINITION OF THE THREE PARTS OF MAN

Scriptures Related to Health & Wholeness

This is a list of various Bible verses that pertain to health and well-being. Some of the verses encourage physical wellness, while others emphasize spiritual well-being or the connection between the two. The specific interpretations and implications of these verses may vary depending on the individual's beliefs and context.

This is a list of Bible verses from the Old and New Testaments. Each verse contains a message of hope, comfort, or guidance for the reader. The verses encourage the reader to trust in God, seek his wisdom, and find peace in his promises. They also remind the reader to care for their physical and emotional well-being, and to live a life that honors God.

1 Corinthians 6:19-20 is a passage from the New Testament of the Bible. It reads: "Do you not know that your bodies are temples of the Holy Spirit, who is in you, whom you have received from God? You are not your own; you were bought at a price. Therefore honor God with your bodies."

Romans 12:1 is a Bible verse that reads: "Therefore, I urge you, brothers and sisters, in view of God's mercy, to offer your bodies as a living sacrifice, holy and pleasing to God—this is your true and proper worship." These are references to Bible verses.

1 Timothy 4:7-9 encourages physical and spiritual training, saying that it has value in both this life and the next.

Proverbs 14:30 says that a peaceful mind is healthy, but jealousy and envy can rot the bones.

Proverbs 3:7-8 advises that we should not be wise in our own eyes, but instead fear the Lord and turn away from evil. This will bring health to our body and nourishment to our bones.

Psalm 63:5 expresses a desire for God, saying that the speaker's soul is satisfied as with the richest of foods.

This is a selection of Bible verses:

2 Corinthians 5:17 - "Therefore, if anyone is in Christ, the new creation has come: The old has gone, the new is here!"

Exodus 15:26 - "He said, 'If you listen carefully to the Lord your God and do what is right in his eyes, if you pay attention to his commands and keep all his decrees, I will not bring on you any of the diseases I brought on the Egyptians, for I am the Lord, who heals you.'"

Isaiah 40:29-31 - "He gives strength to the weary and increases the power of the weak. Even youths grow tired and weary, and young men stumble and fall; but those who hope in the Lord will renew their strength. They will soar on wings like eagles; they will run and not grow weary, they will walk and not be faint."

THE DEFINITION OF THE THREE PARTS OF MAN

Psalm 145:15-16 - "The eyes of all look to you, and you give them their food at the proper time. You open your hand and satisfy the desires of every living thing."
Psalm 107:19-20 - "Then they cried to the Lord in their trouble, and he saved them from their distress. He sent out his word and healed them; he rescued them from the grave."
Proverbs 3:7-8 - "Do not be wise in your own eyes; fear the Lord and shun evil. This will bring health to your body and nourishment to your bones."
Isaiah 58:11 - "The Lord will guide you always; he will satisfy your needs in a sun-scorched land and will strengthen your frame. You will be like a well-watered garden, like a spring whose waters never fail."
Job 12:10 - "In his hand is the life of every creature and the breath of all mankind." Exodus 23:25 - "Worship the Lord your God, and his blessing will be on your food and water. I will take away sickness from among you."
Proverbs 17:22 - "A cheerful heart is good medicine, but a crushed spirit dries up the bones."
Proverbs 13:12 - "Hope deferred makes the heart sick, but a longing fulfilled is a tree of life."
Proverbs 15:15 - "All the days of the oppressed are wretched, but the cheerful heart has a continual feast."
Proverbs 18:14 - "The human spirit can endure in sickness, but a crushed spirit who can bear?"
Psalm 147:3 - "He heals the brokenhearted and binds up their wounds."
Isaiah 19:22 - "The Lord will strike Egypt with a plague; he will strike them and heal them. They will turn to the Lord, and he will respond to their pleas and heal them."
These are Bible verses from the Old and New Testaments of the Christian Bible. The verses are: 1 Timothy 4:3-5 - Discusses false teachings and the importance of receiving God's word with thanksgiving. Isaiah 46:3-4 - God promises to care for his people from the time of their birth until they are old and gray. Isaiah 53:4-5 - Prophecy about the coming of a suffering servant who will bear the sins of the people and bring them healing. Jeremiah 30:12-14,17 - Prophecy about the restoration of Israel and the punishment of their enemies. Ezekiel 37:4-6 - Prophecy about the restoration of the dry bones of Israel. Deuteronomy 8:3 - A reminder to the Israelites that God sustains them through his word and provisions. Psalm 63:5 - David expresses his desire for God and his recognition of God's power and glory.
This is a list of Bible passages, each with its own message. Acts 28:25-27 talks about the Holy Spirit speaking through the prophet Isaiah to the people of Israel. Matthew 11:28-29 is an invitation from Jesus to come to Him and find rest. Psalms 119:143 is a prayer asking for God's help during a difficult time. Proverbs 12:25 speaks about the importance of encouraging others. Isaiah 26:3 talks about the peace that comes from trusting in God. Philippians 4:6-7 encourages us to bring our worries to God in prayer. Galatians 5:22-23 lists the fruits of the Spirit. Matthew 6:27 and 6:34 speak about not worrying about tomorrow, but focusing on today. John 8:32 talks about the truth setting us free. John 14:27 talks about the peace that Jesus gives. Romans 15:13 encourages us to have hope through the power of the Holy Spirit. Hebrews 12:12 talks about strengthening our feeble arms and weak knees. 1 Corinthians 10:31 encourages us to do everything for the glory of God. Ephesians 2:10 talks about us being God's handiwork. Isaiah 55:2 talks about the satisfaction that comes from seeking God. Matthew 8:16-17, Mark 5:34, and Luke 8:48 all tell of Jesus healing people. John 9:39 speaks about spiritual blindness. Acts 10:38 talks about Jesus going around doing good and healing. 2 Corinthians 7:1 encourages us to purify ourselves. Psalm 119:93 talks about the importance of God's word. Romans 12:2 talks about being transformed by the renewing of our minds. 1 Thessalonians 5:23 is a prayer for God to sanctify us completely. 3 John 1:2 is a prayer of blessing.

TRIPARTITE MAN

The Bible provides an in-depth understanding of the nature of man, explaining that man is composed of three distinct parts: the body, the soul, and the spirit. This concept is supported throughout both the Old and New Testaments, with Genesis 2:7 being a prime example. In this verse, God formed man's physical body using the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life, which ultimately formed the spirit of man. Zechariah 12:1 reinforces this concept, as it describes how Jehovah formed the spirit of man within him. The final step of man's creation is recorded in Genesis 2:7, where it states that "man became a living soul." This demonstrates that the soul, which is man's intrinsic person, was formed from the breath of God entering the nostrils of the body of dust.

The New Testament further expands on this concept, with 1 Thessalonians 5:23 explicitly stating that man is made up of three parts: "spirit and soul and body." The repetition of the conjunction "and" serves to reinforce the distinctness of each part. Additionally, Hebrews 4:12 provides further clarification by stating that "The word of God is living and operative and sharper than any two-edged sword, and piercing even to the dividing of soul and spirit and of joints and marrow." This verse reinforces the distinctness of the three parts, as it makes it clear that the joints and marrow pertain to the body, while the soul is explicitly separate from the spirit.

Through these Old and New Testament references, it becomes clear that the Bible consistently presents the tripartite nature of man. The concept of the body, soul, and spirit working together to form the complete person is a vital aspect of Christian theology and provides believers with a clear understanding of the nature of man.

THE HUMAN SPIRIT

The human spirit is a complex entity, with three distinct parts that work together to create a cohesive whole. These three parts, which are described in Scripture, are conscience, fellowship, and intuition. Each of these parts plays an important role in shaping our spiritual lives and guiding us towards a deeper connection with God.

The conscience, for example, is the part of the spirit that allows us to discern right from wrong. It is through our conscience that we are able to make moral judgments and understand the consequences of our actions. However, the conscience is not simply a tool for judgment - it can also be a source of comfort and guidance. When we act in accordance with our conscience, we can feel a sense of peace and fulfillment that comes from knowing that we are doing what is right.

Fellowship, on the other hand, is the part of the spirit that allows us to connect with God and with other believers. Through fellowship, we are able to share our experiences, our struggles, and our joys with others who are on the same journey as us. This sense of community can be incredibly powerful, providing us with the support and encouragement we need to grow in our faith.

Finally, intuition is the part of the spirit that allows us to know and discern independently of reason or circumstance. It is through intuition that we are able to sense the presence of God in our lives and recognize His guidance. This spiritual sense is not something that can be easily explained or quantified - it is simply a part of who we are as spiritual beings.

Taken together, these three parts of the human spirit form a powerful force for good in our lives. By cultivating our conscience, fellowship, and intuition, we can deepen our connection to God and to the world around us. As we continue to grow and develop spiritually, we will find that our lives are enriched and our souls are filled with a sense of purpose and meaning.

THE SOUL

The soul is a complex concept that has been widely discussed throughout history. It is commonly understood to consist of three parts: the mind, the will, and the emotion. These three parts work together to create a cohesive sense of self.

In the Bible, the mind is consistently identified as a part of the soul. This is evident in numerous passages, such as Psalm 139:14, which states, "I will praise You, for I am awesomely and wonderfully made; Your works are wonderful, and my soul knows it well." The ability to know and understand is a function of the mind, and this verse clearly indicates that the mind is part of the soul. Similarly, Lamentations 3:20 says, "My soul remembers them well and is bowed down within me." The ability to remember is also a function of the mind, further emphasizing its role in the soul.

The will is another important component of the soul. Job 7:15 states, "So that my soul would choose strangulation and death rather than my bones." Here, Job speaks of his will, expressing his desire to choose death over life. Similarly, Job 6:7 says, "My soul refuses to touch them...," indicating that the will has the ability to reject certain things. These examples demonstrate that the will is a fundamental part of the soul.

Finally, the emotions are an essential part of the soul. In Song of Songs 1:7, the Shulamite speaks to her beloved, saying, "Tell me, you whom my soul loves." Here, she expresses her love, which is a clear manifestation of her emotions. Second Samuel 5:8 provides an example of hate, stating, "And David said on that day, Whoever would strike the Jebusites, let him go up to the watercourse and strike the lame and the blind, who are hated by David's soul...." In Psalm 86:4, David experiences joy and asks God to "Cause the soul of Your servant to rejoice...." These verses demonstrate that emotions are a vital part of the soul, allowing us to experience a wide range of feelings, from love and joy to hate and sorrow.

In conclusion, the soul is a complex and multifaceted concept, consisting of the mind, the will, and the emotions. These three parts work together to create a cohesive sense of self, and are integral to our understanding of what it means to be human.

THE BODY

The body of man, with its five senses, is the physical manifestation of human existence, allowing individuals to interact with the world around them. This physical body is a divine provision from God, allowing humans to exist in the material realm. Originally, man was created with a pure, undefiled body, but due to the fall of man, his body became corrupted and transmuted in nature, leading to an existence of fallen flesh full of lust.

Despite this, there is hope for redemption and renewal of the body, as it is mentioned in 1 Corinthians 15:42-44, "So also is the resurrection of the dead. It is sown a perishable body, it is raised an imperishable body; it is sown in dishonor, it is raised in glory; it is sown in weakness, it is raised in power; it is sown a natural body, it is raised a spiritual body." Thus, with the promise of a new, incorruptible body, it is important to take care of our physical bodies in the present, as they are the vessels that carry us through life.

One way to take care of the body is through exercise and proper nutrition. Exercising regularly and maintaining a healthy diet can lead to a longer and healthier life. Additionally, caring for the body can also involve taking care of one's mental health. Practices such as meditation, therapy, and mindfulness can help reduce stress and promote overall well-being.

Therefore, it is important to recognize the significance of the physical body and its role in human existence, while also striving to maintain and improve its health and well-being.

THE HEART

A Composition of the Soul and the Conscience (The Leading Part of the Spirit)

Throughout Scripture, the heart is described as the composition of all parts of the soul, as well as the conscience, which is the primary part of the spirit. This notion of the heart being composed of multiple parts may seem odd at first, but it is actually quite profound. By recognizing that the heart encompasses the mind, will, and emotion, we can gain a deeper understanding of how our thoughts, actions, and feelings are interconnected and influence one another.

For instance, Genesis 6:5 illuminates how the mind is a part of the heart when it describes how "every imagination of the thoughts of his heart was only evil continually." Similarly, Matthew 9:4 reports that Jesus knew the thoughts of the Pharisees when he said, "Why are you thinking evil things in your hearts?" These verses highlight how the mind is part of the soul and, therefore, a component of the heart.

The will, another part of the soul, is also integral to the heart. Acts 11:23 speaks of "purpose of heart," indicating that the will is part of the heart. Additionally, Hebrews 4:12 refers to the Word's ability to discern "the thoughts and intentions of the heart." Both "purpose" and "intentions" are functions of the will, further demonstrating that the will is part of the heart.

The emotion is also part of the heart, as seen in John 16:6 and 16:22, which link sorrow and rejoicing to the heart. These scriptural references clearly demonstrate that the soul (with its three parts) is a key component of the heart.

Lastly, the conscience, which is the leading part of the spirit, is integrally related to the heart. Hebrews 10:22 links the two together when it speaks of "our hearts sprinkled from an evil conscience." Additionally, 1 John 3:20 warns that "if our heart blames us, it is because God is greater than our heart and knows all things." Blame and condemnation are the primary functions of the conscience, further proof that it is part of the heart.

In summary, by recognizing that the heart encompasses the mind, will, and emotion, as well as the conscience, we can gain a deeper understanding of how these components work together to shape who we are. This understanding can help us to better navigate our thoughts, actions, and emotions, and to live a more fulfilling life. (Adapted from Witness Lee, Economy 59-61).

THE FUNCTIONS

Genesis 1:26 states that God created man in His own image and likeness. This is an incredible concept to consider: the Creator of the universe, the Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end, made man in His own image and likeness. This means that man is a reflection of God's character, nature, and attributes.

Furthermore, man was created to be expressed and represented through him. In other words, God created man as His representative on earth, to carry out His will and to bring about His plans and purposes. Each part of man was therefore created with a specific function in relation to God's purpose and plan.

This concept is both humbling and empowering. It reminds us of our smallness in comparison to the vastness of God, yet it also highlights the importance of our role in fulfilling His purposes. As we seek to understand and fulfill our specific functions in relation to God's plan, we can experience a sense of purpose and fulfillment that goes beyond our own individual desires and goals.

THE FUNCTION OF THE SPIRIT

Contacting God

The term "worship" comes from the Greek word proskuneo which means to come forward and kiss. This implies intimate contact with another person. Similarly, worshiping God means contacting Him as the divine Spirit in our human spirit. The Lord Jesus said in John 4:24, "God is Spirit, and those who worship Him must worship in spirit and truthfulness."

In order to contact God, it is important to develop an intimate relationship with Him. This can be achieved through prayer, meditation, and studying the Bible. These practices will help us to become more aware of God's presence in our lives and to deepen our understanding of His character and nature.

Receiving God

We receive God initially when we are born anew. This new birth takes place in our spirit, for according to John 3:6, "...that which is born of the Spirit is spirit." Not only does our spirit function to receive God initially, but it continues to function to receive God as the Spirit for the rest of our Christian life. This is prophesied in Ezekiel 36:26: "I will also give you a new heart, and a new spirit I will put within you." We need to exercise our spirit to receive God, just like we exercise our ears to appreciate sound or our mouth to receive food.

To receive God, we must first acknowledge our need for Him in our lives. We must also have a willingness to surrender our own will and desires to His will. This requires faith and trust in God's goodness and sovereignty.

Containing God

Finally, our spirit functions to contain God. Second Timothy 4:22 says, "The Lord be with your spirit." This verse clearly designates our human spirit as the place where God makes His abode in us. Therefore, we can accurately describe our spirit as a container of God. As we grow in our relationship with God, our spirit will become more receptive to His presence and will be better able to contain Him. This will result in a deeper sense of peace, joy, and fulfillment in our lives..

THE FUNCTION OF THE SOUL

Expressing and Reflecting the Lord

The primary function of the human soul is to express and reflect the Lord. When we express and reflect the Lord, we experience joy and fulfillment in our spiritual lives. For example, Mary's soul expressed God's greatness and joy in response to Elizabeth's blessing: "My soul magnifies the Lord, and my spirit has exulted in God my Savior" (Luke 1:46-47). However, the joy in Mary's spirit could not be fully expressed without the function of her soul.

Furthermore, the Bible teaches us that our soul also has the function of reflecting God. Second Corinthians 3:18 describes how we can reflect God like a mirror: "But we all, with unveiled face, beholding and reflecting like a mirror the glory of the Lord, are being transformed into the same image from glory to glory, even as from the Lord Spirit." In order to reflect Christ most clearly, our fallen source must be denied (Matthew 16:24-26; Luke 9:23-25), and our soul must be purified by receiving the Word (1 Peter 1:22) and transformed into the image of Christ by renewing the mind (Romans 12:2; 2 Corinthians 3:18).

When our soul is denied, purified, and transformed, it can fulfill its intended function: the glorious, true reflection of Christ. This is what Witness Lee teaches us in Economy 70-71. He emphasizes that our soul can only fulfill this function when it is in a state of purity and transformation. Therefore, it is crucial for us to continually deny our fallen source and renew our minds with the Word of God. By doing so, we can experience a deeper connection with God and a greater sense of purpose in our lives.

THE FUNCTION OF THE BODY

The Function of the Body

The human body is a remarkable and intricate creation that is vital to our existence. It is the least mysterious of all three parts of a human being, but it is by no means any less important. In fact, it is simply God's provision for our existence and without it, we would not be able to exist within the physical realm.

The physical body is the organ of our existence, upon which our very existence depends. It is through our physical body that we interact with the world around us, experience sensations, and express ourselves. Every thought, feeling, and action is dependent on the proper functioning of our body.

When a man's body dies, the man himself ceases to exist. This emphasizes the vital role of the physical body in our existence. Therefore, we should not take our physical body for granted and take care of it through proper diet, exercise, and rest.

In conclusion, the physical body is not only a remarkable creation but it is also the organ of our existence that we rely on for every aspect of our lives. It is a gift from God that we should cherish and care for.

(Witness Lee, Basic 10-11)

THE THREE PARTS OF MAN SPOILED BY THE FALL OF MAN

According to the Christian faith, man was created with a three-part nature consisting of his spirit, soul, and body. Each of these parts was designed with a distinct purpose: the spirit to receive God, the soul to express Him, and the body to maintain man's existence. The first man, Adam, had tremendous potential to express and represent God. However, before this potential could be realized, Satan came and ultimately annulled the proper function of each of man's three parts. This event became known as the fall of man, which had far-reaching consequences, affecting all aspects of his being. Despite this, it set the stage for God's salvation.

The fall of man was not merely an act of disobedience and transgression. Instead, it had the effect of corrupting all three parts of man's being, thus preventing him from fulfilling God's purpose. When Adam sinned, he became separated from God, and his three-part nature was deeply affected. Firstly, his spirit was deadened, and he lost his ability to function correctly towards God. Secondly, his soul was contaminated, beginning with his mind, which was touched by Satan, causing him to doubt God's Word. This doubt led to the contamination of his emotions, causing him to dislike God, and his will, which enticed him to choose the satanic tree of knowledge rather than the divine tree of life. Lastly, his body was transmuted into the sinful flesh.

To elaborate on the corruption of man's soul, it is essential to understand the tactics used by God's enemy. Satan's tactics involved a three-stage process, where he targeted man's mind, emotions, and will. First, he targeted man's mind, causing him to doubt God's Word. In Genesis 3:1, the serpent began his assault on the human mind by injecting doubt: "Did God really say, 'You shall not eat of any tree of the garden'?" The second stage of Satan's tactics involved targeting man's emotions, causing him to dislike God. In this stage, the serpent sowed a seed of resentment into Eve by lying to her about God's motive. Lastly, Satan enticed man to choose the satanic tree of knowledge instead of the divine tree of life, corrupting man's will.

The fall of man had significant consequences that affected all three parts of his being. Understanding the tactics used by God's enemy to corrupt man's soul is essential to discerning the strategies he continues to employ to prevent man from receiving and enjoying God. This awareness equips us to express and represent Him better.

The human body was originally created by God as a pure vessel containing only one created essence: human nature, created in God's image and likeness. This essence was meant to reflect God's perfect nature. However, this pure body was transformed into fallen flesh when a foreign element was introduced through the fruit of the tree of knowledge. This foreign element, known as indwelling sin, completely changed the nature of the human body, corrupting it and causing it to become subject to death and decay.

According to the Christian faith, the redemption of the body is a key part of the salvation process. Through Christ's sacrifice on the cross, we can be redeemed and made new, with our bodies being transformed from corruptible to incorruptible. This transformation will not only give us a new body, but also a new nature, one that is free from sin and fully aligned with God's will. So while the battle against sin may be ongoing, we can take comfort in the fact that we have hope for a better future, one where our bodies and our souls will be made whole and complete in Christ.

Lastly, according to the Bible, the fall of man had severe consequences on his spirit. As a result of the fall, man's spirit became desensitized and lost its function towards God. In Ephesians 2:1, it is stated that we were "dead in our offenses and sins," which refers to our fallen state. It is important to note that sin and Satan have never been able to penetrate man's spirit, as God has preserved it for Himself. However, the God-contacting function of our spirit was deadened, which highlights the damage done to each of man's three parts. The soul, consisting of the mind, emotions, and will, was also contaminated, and the body experienced a change in nature.

Despite this hopeless state of man, it is crucial to remember that God's salvation sets the stage for redemption. As Witness Lee notes in his Life-Study on this topic, the fall and its aftermath demonstrate the need for salvation and the hope that it provides.

GOD'S SALVATION FOR THE THREE PARTS OF MAN

As the initial stage of God's wondrous salvation, He brings about a rebirth in the innermost part of our being - our spirit. When we genuinely repent of our wrongdoings and apply the redeeming blood of Christ to purify our conscience, our previously lifeless spirit is infused with life. Ephesians 2:5 elucidates this by stating, "Even though we were spiritually dead due to our transgressions, [God] made us alive together with Christ (by His gracious salvation)." Consequently, our revitalized spirit begins to perceive the presence of God and actively engages with Him. Through this profound connection, not only is the functionality of our spirit restored, but the divine and eternal life of God is also imparted to it (Romans 8:10). This life is none other than Christ Himself (John 14:6). This transformative experience is commonly referred to as the new birth, or the regeneration, as mentioned in John 3:6: "That which is born of the Spirit is spirit." Through this new birth, God's very own life becomes an inseparable part of our spirit, which was originally absent in our initial birth. Remarkably, this also fulfills the promise of the Lord as stated in Ezekiel 36:26: "I will give you a new heart and put a new spirit within you" (Witness Lee, Economy 66-68).

The regeneration of our spirit stands as the primary phase of God's comprehensive salvation for humanity. It is through this transformative process that our spiritually dormant state is replaced with life. We gain the ability to perceive the presence of God and establish a profound connection with Him. Through this connection, not only is the functionality of our spirit restored, but the divine and eternal life of God is also bestowed upon it. This new life is none other than Christ Himself, and it serves as the fulfillment of the Lord's promise to grant us a new spirit.

2. Transformation in Our Soul

As a result of regeneration, a change in life began to take place at the center of our being. God's life with its divine nature was added to our human spirit. Following our regeneration, God desires that this change of life would continue by gradually spreading into our mind, emotion, and will. For this reason, we need Christ to grow and expand continually from our spirit into our soul, a process the Bible calls transformation. Christ carries out this transforming work through the indwelling Holy Spirit, beginning with the renewing of our mind mentioned in Romans 12:2: "be transformed by the renewing of the mind." As this renewing progresses on from day to day, we begin to think, love, and choose as God does. Eventually, we will resemble God fully, being absolutely conformed to the image of God. This is why 2 Corinthians 3:18 explains, "we all with unveiled face, beholding and reflecting like a mirror the glory of the Lord, are being transformed into the same image from glory to glory, even as from the Lord Spirit." Thus, in God's salvation of our soul, the contamination of Satan is negated, and even more, we come to bear the glorious image of Christ in full (Witness Lee, Conclusion 1601-1602, 1609-1610).

Transformation in our soul is a process that begins after our regeneration. This process involves the gradual spreading of God's life and divine nature from our spirit into our mind, emotion, and will. Through this process, we begin to think, love, and choose as God does. We are transformed, day by day, into the image of God. We reflect the glory of the Lord and are being transformed into the same image from glory to glory. This transformation is not just the negation of Satan's contamination, but it is also the manifestation of the glorious image of Christ in full.

3. Transfiguration of Our Body

Following the lifelong process of transformation in our soul, God culminates His salvation process by transfiguring our mortal body, as described in 1 Corinthians 15:52-53: "In a moment, in the twinkling of an eye...we will be changed. For this corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality." Philippians 3:21 also speaks of our transfiguration: "Who will transfigure the body of our humiliation to be conformed to the body of His glory."

GOD'S SALVATION FOR THE THREE PARTS OF MAN

For this verse in the New Testament Recovery Version summarizes God's salvation of the three parts of man: "The transfiguration of our body is the ultimate consummation of God's salvation. In His salvation, God first regenerated our spirit (John 3:6), is now transforming our soul (Romans 12:2), and consummately will transfigure our body, making us the same as Christ in all three parts of our being." Thus, in God's full salvation, our body is freed from the foreign elements of sin and death, and even more, it is saturated with the divine glory and conformed to the body of His glory (Witness Lee).

The transfiguration of our body is the final step in God's salvation process. It is through this process that our mortal bodies are transformed to be like Christ in all three parts of our being. Our bodies are freed from the foreign elements of sin and death and are saturated with the divine glory and conformed to the body of His glory. This is the ultimate consummation of God's salvation, and it is the fulfillment of His plan for man.

In conclusion, God's salvation of man is a complete restoration of his entire being. It starts with the regeneration of man's spirit and continues with the transformation of man's soul. It culminates with the transfiguration of man's body. Through this process, man is thoroughly saturated with the life of God in each of his three parts, and every effect of the fall of man has been reversed, every trace of the fall has been erased. In God's full salvation of man, man is conformed to the image of Christ in all three parts of his being.

THE DIVINE LIFE GIVEN OUT INTO THE TRIPARTITE MAN

The divine life is an incredibly miraculous gift that permeates not only our mind and spirit but also every single cell and fiber of our mortal bodies. It is truly a remarkable concept that is beautifully outlined in the book of Romans, specifically in 8:11. This verse enlightens us with the profound truth that if the Spirit of the One who raised Jesus from the dead dwells within us, then the same Spirit will also bestow life upon our mortal bodies. Just imagine the magnitude of this revelation! It means that the divine life has the power to infuse our physical being with divine energy and vitality, enabling us to wholeheartedly serve the Lord.

When we make a committed decision to embrace a lifestyle of deep spiritual devotion and faithfully follow His teachings, something extraordinary happens. The divine life that resides within us begins to radiate and spread throughout every aspect of our being. It starts in our spirit, but it doesn't stop there. This divine life permeates through our soul, our mind, our emotions, and even our physical bodies. It transforms us from the inside out, making us men and women of life in every dimension of our being.

As believers in Christ, we are incredibly privileged to experience and partake in this divine life. It is not something to be taken lightly. It is a profound responsibility that we must cherish and uphold. We have been entrusted with the divine life, and it is our duty to nurture it, cultivate it, and allow it to flourish in every area of our lives. Let us embrace this privilege with gratitude and strive to be vessels of life, shining brightly with the divine energy that dwells within us.

OUR PHYSICAL BODY FOR THE LIFE OF THE CHURCH

It is important to recognize that our tripartite being is not solely for our own individual spirituality, but for the building up of the Body of Christ as a whole. Therefore, it is necessary for us to present not only our physical bodies, but also our souls and spirits to the Lord for the sake of His Body.

In order to embody and participate in the Body life, we must present our physical bodies to the Lord in the church life. This means attending church meetings and participating in fellowship with other believers. By doing so, we can receive the nourishment and supply needed to grow and build up the Body of Christ.

In addition to presenting our physical bodies, our souls must also be transformed. This requires the renewing of our mind, as stated in Romans 12:2, "And do not be conformed to this world, but be transformed by the renewing of your mind, that you may prove what is that good and acceptable and perfect will of God." Our minds must be purged, renewed, and re-educated from our old ways of thinking, natural ideas, and traditional considerations. With a renewed mind, we can bring fresh perspectives and ideas to the Body life, contributing to its growth and vitality.

Furthermore, our spirits must be fervent and active. Romans 12:11 exhorts us to "not lag in diligence, fervent in spirit, serving the Lord." A lukewarm or inactive spirit can hinder the realization of the Body life, while a fervent spirit can energize and encourage other members of the Body. By exercising our spirits and being fully engaged in the church life, we can become living, functioning members of Christ's Body.

In conclusion, our tripartite being is critical to realizing the Body life. By presenting our physical bodies, renewing our minds, and exercising our spirits, we can contribute to the growth and vitality of the Body of Christ. Through our participation in the church life, we can experience the fullness of God's salvation and dispensing, and be built up together as a corporate expression of Christ on the earth. (Adapted from Witness Lee, Economy 172-176).

MIND & BODY INTERACTION TO DISEASE

The brain and immune system interact with each other, which may explain how mental state affects physical health. Although people have long known about this connection, doctors largely forgot about it with the rise of antibiotics. However, new research is showing that the mind really does impact physical illness.

Recent tools in molecular biology and pharmacology have helped us to understand how the immune system and brain communicate. Immune cells produce chemicals that signal the brain, which can affect our behavior and response to stress by controlling the immune system. Disruptions in this communication can worsen diseases like infections, inflammations, autoimmune disorders, and mood disorders. These findings offer hope for new treatments and underscore how mental state can influence our ability to fight diseases.

The brain and immune system work together to maintain balance in the body. They respond to danger and germs, and require significant energy to function properly.

When balance in the body is threatened, it triggers a range of responses that can be physical or mental. These responses can cause stress and lead to disease. Scientists are studying how the brain and immune system regulate and counter-regulate each other, and how their malfunction can cause disease.

The stress response is how our bodies and minds react to scary or dangerous situations. It increases alertness and readiness to fight or flee, but can also interfere with eating, sleeping, or sex. It needs to be controlled so that it doesn't cause problems.

The immune system's job is to protect us from germs, toxins, and unhealthy cells. However, it needs to be regulated to prevent diseases where it attacks our own bodies or malfunctions.

The immune system and brain function differently. The brain is like a boss, and the immune system is made up of many workers that travel throughout the body. They communicate through messages sent through the blood.

MIND & BODY INTERACTION TO DISEASE

Both the brain and immune system receive and respond to signals, and have similar structures. They each have parts that sense and parts that act on stimuli.

Cross Communication

The nervous and immune systems communicate with each other through chemical messengers. Immune and nerve cells can both send signals to each other. Additionally, the brain produces hormones that circulate throughout the body.

One such hormone is corticotropin-releasing hormone (CRH), which links stress and immune responses. The hypothalamus produces CRH and sends it through a special blood system to the pituitary gland. The pituitary gland then releases adrenocorticotropin hormone (ACTH) into the bloodstream, which prompts the adrenal glands to produce cortisol, a hormone commonly associated with stress.

Cortisol helps the body respond to stress by increasing heart rate, making blood vessels more responsive to adrenaline, and altering energy usage. It is also crucial for regulating the immune system and preventing overreactions to injuries. Cortisol inhibits the release of CRH, which helps control stress and connect it to the immune system.

Neurons in the brain that produce CRH have fibers that reach other brain stem regions and the locus ceruleus, which regulate the sympathetic nervous system and fear-based behaviors. These neurons also receive signals from the immune system, which halts immune responses and induces behaviors that aid in the body's recovery. CRH neurons also have connections with parts of the brain that control eating and reproductive behavior. The brain and immune system can also change how they work together by producing other hormones and chemicals.

Immune System Signals

The immune response is a complex process that helps the body eliminate harmful substances such as bacteria and viruses. Immune cells produce interleukins, which are small proteins that help different types of immune cells develop and fight infection. Interleukins also assist immune cells involved in allergic reactions.

Interleukins and cytokines are chemical signals that help immune cells communicate with each other and other parts of the body, including the brain. Cytokines are molecules used by many different types of cells to communicate. They can stimulate or inhibit a response depending on the situation and help the immune system maintain balance.

Cytokines from the immune system can cross the blood-brain barrier and stimulate the release of secondary chemical signals in brain tissue. Cytokines can also signal the brain through direct nerve routes, such as the vagus nerve. By activating the brain, cytokines can induce sickness behavior, including anxiety and cautious avoidance, to keep an individual safe until healing occurs. Disruption of communication between the brain and immune system can increase susceptibility to inflammatory and infectious diseases. This discovery is leading to new approaches to treating and preventing paralysis following spinal cord injury.

Stress can impair the immune system and contribute to variations in the immune system's inflammatory response. Impairment of the HPA axis and lower levels of CRH secretion are associated with a hyperactive immune system in a variety of inflammatory diseases. Patients with atypical depression, chronic fatigue syndrome, fibromyalgia, and seasonal affective disorder exhibit features of both depression and a hyperactive immune system.

Melancholia, the classic form of depression, is characterized by a sustained hypersecretion of cortisol, which is a common biological abnormality. Tricyclic antidepressant drugs can lower CRH precursor levels in the hypothalamus, which supports the concept that melancholia is associated with a chronic stress response. The interactions between the stress and immune systems could explain how attempts to reduce stress could affect immune responses.

MIND & BODY INTERACTION TO DISEASE

Genetic Factors Stress responsiveness comes from a mix of genes, early development, learning, and experiences. The effects of stress on the body depend on how intense and long-lasting the stress is, how the person sees it, and their body's "stress system."

Stress can make people more likely to get sick by changing how their immune system works. Stress hormones like cortisol and nerve chemicals like norepinephrine and epinephrine can make it harder for immune cells to fight off infections and other things that shouldn't be there.

Different types of stress can affect health in different ways. Long-term stress usually makes the immune system weaker, while short-term stress can make it stronger. Different types of stress can also affect how well people can fight different viruses.

Stress can make it harder for the body to fight viruses and bacteria. For example, people who are stressed out and get the common cold make more of the virus and mucus than people who aren't stressed out. Students who get a hepatitis vaccine during final exams don't always get full protection against hepatitis.

Long-term stress can make it harder for the body to heal from wounds, and it can make vaccines less effective. This is a big problem for public health.

Studies on animals show that stress can make illnesses like the flu and tuberculosis worse. It can also make people more likely to get infections and more likely to have a worse time with AIDS. The immune system and the stress response are closely linked. Even something like drinking saccharin-flavored water can lower the immune system's ability to fight off infections.

Our relationships with other people can make us more or less stressed out, and this can affect our immune system and hormones. People who are under long-term stress from their relationships are more likely to have problems with inflammation and infection, and they're more likely to get sick.

People who are caregivers or spouses of Alzheimer's patients often have weaker immune systems, and people who are stressed out in their relationships have higher levels of stress hormones.

Getting support from other people can help people's immune systems and make it easier for them to fight diseases like cancer. Women with breast cancer who get support from others often live longer than women who don't.

In the past, people with chronic diseases would go to mountain sanatoriums or hot-springs spas to get better. New research shows that when the brain and immune system don't communicate well, people are more likely to get sick and have a harder time getting better. Relaxing at a spa or taking medicine can help start the process of getting better.

Some drugs that affect the immune system can help with mental health problems, and some drugs that affect mental health can help with inflammation. Our thoughts about ourselves and others, our stress levels, and our genes can all affect our immune system. And diseases that cause a lot of inflammation can affect our mood and anxiety levels. All of this means that separating mental and physical health isn't really helpful.

INHERITED OUTCOMES

Did you know that when your grandmother was carrying your mother she was also carrying you inside her?

The bond between a mother and her child is truly extraordinary. It goes far beyond the physical act of giving birth. Even after the baby is born, the mother continues to carry a part of her child within her for many years to come. This deep connection is not only emotional but also has fascinating biological implications.

Scientific research has shown that during pregnancy, fetal cells from the baby migrate into the mother's bloodstream and remain in her body, creating a permanent imprint. These cells possess an incredible ability to repair the mother's body, acting almost like little superheroes rushing to the site of an injury, especially a heart injury. It's absolutely amazing how the mother's body not only protects and nurtures the baby but also benefits from the baby's presence by receiving these healing cells. This phenomenon, known as fetal micro chimerism, is a remarkable demonstration of the intertwining of two lives.

This unique connection between a mother and her child also sheds light on why certain illnesses seem to disappear during pregnancy. It's as if the baby, in its own magical way, contributes to the mother's well-being and helps in the rebuilding and protection of her body. Researchers believe that the fetal cells play a role in modulating the mother's immune system, potentially providing protection against certain diseases.

Furthermore, cravings experienced by pregnant women might actually be the body's way of indicating specific nutrient deficiencies that need to be addressed for the benefit of both the mother and the baby. These cravings can be seen as the body's instinctive response to ensure that it receives the necessary nutrients to support the growth and development of the baby. By paying attention to these cravings and fulfilling them with healthy food choices, both the mother and the baby can reap the benefits of a well-nourished body.

All of these interconnected aspects truly emphasize the magical and beautiful connection between a mother and her child. It is a relationship that transcends time and space, uniting two beings in an unbreakable bond filled with love, care, and wonder.

SPIRITUAL IMMUNITY

- The concept of spiritual immunity, which refers to the protection and strength of one's spirit, plays a crucial role in maintaining overall well-being. It is believed that a strong spiritual immunity can help ward off negative energies and illnesses.
- Similarly, physical immunity is the body's ability to resist and fight off diseases. It is important to take care of our physical health through proper nutrition, exercise, and hygiene practices to enhance our physical immunity.
- The phrase "no plague shall come to thy dwelling" emphasizes the idea that by maintaining a healthy spiritual and physical immunity, one can create a protective shield against any harmful influences or diseases that may try to enter their life.
- The saying "what a man thinketh in his heart so is he" highlights the power of our thoughts and beliefs in shaping our reality. It suggests that our mindset and inner thoughts can have a profound impact on our overall well-being and can even influence our physical health.
- It is said that our words have the power to bring blessings or cursings into our lives. By speaking positive affirmations and blessings, we can attract positivity and good health. On the other hand, speaking negative words or cursings can invite negativity and potentially affect our physical well-being.
- The connection between acceptance and physical ailments in the brain is an interesting area of study. It is worth exploring how accepting certain beliefs or ideas may have an impact on the brain and potentially lead to physical health issues.
- The term "spirit of infirmity" refers to a spiritual force or presence that is associated with weaknesses or illnesses. It is often believed that addressing and overcoming this spirit can contribute to improved health and well-being.
- Similarly, the "spirit of affliction" is another spiritual concept that relates to experiencing hardships, challenges, or suffering. Understanding and addressing this spirit can potentially lead to healing and a better quality of life.
- A "familiar spirit" is a spiritual entity that is believed to be connected to a specific person or family. It can influence and affect the well-being of individuals within that family, including their physical health. Recognizing and addressing the presence of a familiar spirit can be important in seeking healing and restoration.
- Generational curses refer to negative patterns or influences that are believed to be passed down through generations within a family. These curses can manifest in various aspects of life, including physical health. Breaking free from generational curses often involves identifying and addressing the root causes and seeking spiritual healing and deliverance.

If we think it, we start to believe it. Our thoughts have the power to shape our beliefs and perceptions. When we speak our beliefs out loud, we reinforce them even further. As we continue to affirm our beliefs, they become deeply ingrained in our subconscious mind. Our brain then translates these beliefs into actions and behaviors that align with what we believe to be true. This process creates a ripple effect throughout our entire body, as our thoughts and beliefs influence our emotions, decisions, and ultimately, our reality.

The acceptance of these thoughts opens doors to our physical bodies of sort of an after affect.

The acceptance and understanding of these profound thoughts and concepts not only unlocks new realms within our physical bodies but also paves the way for a transformative and enlightening aftereffect. By embracing these ideas, we embark on a journey of self-discovery and self-realization, delving deeper into the intricate workings of our existence and the profound impact it can have on our lives. This newfound awareness empowers us to explore uncharted territories of our minds, bodies, and souls, leading to personal growth, spiritual enlightenment, and a deeper connection with the world around us.

SPIRITUAL IMMUNITY

Furthermore, as we embrace these powerful ideas, we open ourselves up to a plethora of possibilities and opportunities. We become more attuned to the intricate nuances of our own thoughts and emotions, allowing us to navigate through life with greater clarity and purpose. Our acceptance of these thoughts not only enriches our own lives but also has a ripple effect on those around us, inspiring and uplifting others to embark on their own journeys of self-discovery and growth.

It is important to note that the acceptance and understanding of thoughts, whether positive or negative, can have varying aftereffects. While positive thoughts may uplift and motivate us, negative thoughts can provide valuable lessons and insights. They can serve as catalysts for change and growth, prompting us to examine our beliefs and perspectives, and ultimately leading to personal transformation.

In conclusion, by wholeheartedly embracing these profound thoughts and concepts, we open ourselves up to a world of possibilities and opportunities for growth and self-discovery. The journey towards acceptance and understanding is not always easy, but the rewards are immeasurable. It is through this journey that we can unlock the true potential within ourselves and experience a profound and transformative aftereffect that reverberates through every aspect of our lives.

POSITIVITY IN SPIRITUAL WARFARE

It's important to have a positive mindset, a positive perspective even though the opposition in front of you is as a Goliath in your life. It's strategically important for you to look past the physical intimidation before you, push back the negative demonic oppression that the Goliath is portraying, to look beyond the hurt, the pain, the anger, the bitterness, the rejection, to get a glimpse of the true root within, to see the true characteristics of the true person before you, to finally encourage, uplift, edify, reproof, and bring unto repentance the actual person with positivity and prayer. Giving mercy to someone so you may obtain mercy.

A positive mindset is linked to a wide range of qualities and traits, such as:

1. Optimism: It is the willingness to try and take a chance rather than giving up on something you've worked hard for. It involves having a positive outlook and believing in the possibility of success.
2. Acceptance: It is the ability to learn from your mistakes while admitting that things don't always work out the way you had hoped. By accepting the reality of situations, you can adapt and move forward.
3. Resilience: It is the ability to overcome hardship, disappointment, and failure without giving up. Resilient individuals bounce back from setbacks and use them as opportunities for growth.
4. Gratitude: It is the intentional, ongoing recognition of your blessings. By expressing gratitude for the positive aspects of your life, you can cultivate a sense of contentment and happiness.
5. Mindfulness: It is the practice of committing the mind to conscious awareness and improving concentration. By being present in the moment and focusing on the task at hand, you can reduce stress and enhance overall well-being.
6. Integrity: It is the quality of being truthful, moral, and upright as opposed to dishonest and self-serving. Acting with integrity builds trust and fosters positive relationships.

POSITIVITY IN SPIRITUAL WARFARE

Not only are these characteristics indicative of a positive mindset, but actively adopting optimism, acceptance, resilience, gratitude, mindfulness, and integrity in your life will help you develop and maintain a positive mindset. By incorporating these traits into your daily routine, you can cultivate a more positive and fulfilling life. Furthermore, when you embrace optimism, you are more likely to view challenges as opportunities for growth and learning. Acceptance allows you to acknowledge and embrace the present moment, fostering a sense of peace and contentment. Resilience empowers you to bounce back from setbacks and overcome obstacles with strength and determination. Expressing gratitude for the blessings in your life can enhance your overall happiness and well-being. Practicing mindfulness enables you to fully engage in the present moment, promoting clarity and reducing stress. Lastly, acting with integrity ensures that your actions align with your values and promotes trust and authenticity in your relationships. By incorporating all of these qualities into your daily life, you will not only develop and maintain a positive mindset, but also create a foundation for a more meaningful and purposeful existence.

POSITIVITY IN SPIRITUAL WARFARE

The bible says to not rely on your own understanding but to rely and trust God's. Do what Jesus did, be like Jesus in Word and in deed. See past their vasauge of negativity, their oppression, and what possesses them because if it's not the Holy Ghost then you are dealing with much more than oppression.

Spiritual warfare is a reality that affects both non-believers and Christians alike, as it stems from the same source. It is important to acknowledge and understand this phenomenon, as it has the potential to impact our lives in various ways. Whether we are believers or not, we may encounter spiritual battles that test our faith, challenge our beliefs, and influence our thoughts and actions.

In the face of spiritual warfare, it is crucial to develop a positive mindset and perspective. While we may encounter opposition that seems insurmountable, we must look beyond the physical intimidation and negative demonic oppression that may be present. Instead, we should strive to see the true root within individuals and approach them with positivity, prayer, and understanding. By doing so, we can encourage, uplift, edify, reprove, and even bring about repentance in others. This approach aligns with the teachings of Jesus, who demonstrated love, compassion, and forgiveness even in the face of adversity.

In addition to adopting a positive mindset, there are various qualities and attitudes that can contribute to our overall well-being and resilience. These include optimism, acceptance, resilience, gratitude, mindfulness, and integrity. Optimism allows us to maintain hope and belief in the possibility of success, even when faced with challenges. Acceptance enables us to learn from our mistakes and adapt to new circumstances. Resilience empowers us to bounce back from setbacks and use them as opportunities for growth. Gratitude helps us recognize and appreciate the positive aspects of our lives. Mindfulness allows us to be present in the moment, reducing stress and enhancing our overall well-being. Lastly, integrity guides us to act truthfully, morally, and uprightly, fostering trust and positive relationships.

By incorporating these qualities into our daily lives, we can cultivate a positive mindset that not only helps us navigate spiritual warfare but also leads to a more fulfilling and meaningful existence. Embracing adversity with a lighthearted attitude, finding joy in unexpected situations, and inspiring others with positive words are just a few examples of the attitudes we can adopt. Additionally, maintaining a positive attitude in defeat, celebrating the success of others, and spreading kindness and compliments to strangers are all ways to foster positivity in ourselves and those around us.

It is important to remember that spiritual warfare is not limited to believers alone. Regardless of our faith, we may face battles that challenge our beliefs and values. However, by relying on God's wisdom and guidance and following the example of Jesus, we can navigate through these challenges with strength, love, and grace. By seeing past the negativity and oppression that may surround us, we can rise above and find peace, purpose, and victory.

SPIRIT-SOUL-BODY CONNECTION

Proverbs 23:7

"For as he thinketh in his heart, so is he: Eat and drink, saith he to thee; but his heart is not with thee."

King James Version (KJV)

Sure, here is a longer explanation of Proverbs 23:7:

In this verse from the Bible, taken from the King James Version (KJV), it emphasizes the connection between a person's thoughts and their true character. It states, "For as he thinketh in his heart, so is he: Eat and drink, saith he to thee; but his heart is not with thee."

This verse highlights the importance of genuine intentions and sincerity. It suggests that a person's true nature is revealed through their thoughts and attitudes, rather than just their words or outward actions. It reminds us that we should not be easily deceived by someone's superficial gestures or promises, but instead pay attention to their true intentions and the alignment of their heart with their words.

In a broader sense, this verse encourages us to be mindful of the connection between our thoughts and our character. Our thoughts shape our beliefs, attitudes, and ultimately our actions. It reminds us to cultivate positive and righteous thoughts, as they have the power to transform us and influence our behavior.

Overall, Proverbs 23:7 serves as a reminder to be discerning and to value authenticity in our interactions with others. It teaches us to look beyond mere appearances and to pay attention to the true intentions and character of individuals, as well as to reflect on the significance of our own thoughts and their impact on our lives.

Certainly! Let me provide a more detailed explanation of 1 Corinthians 2:16.

In this verse from the Bible, taken from the King James Version (KJV), the apostle Paul is addressing the Corinthians and discussing the wisdom that comes from God. He acknowledges that no one can fully comprehend or grasp the mind of the Lord, as it is beyond human understanding.

Paul emphasizes the greatness and inscrutability of God's thoughts and ways, highlighting the vast difference between human wisdom and divine wisdom. He states, "For who hath known the mind of the Lord, that he may instruct him?" This rhetorical question serves to underscore the incomprehensibility of God's mind and the futility of attempting to instruct or guide Him.

However, Paul goes on to provide a remarkable reassurance to believers. He declares, "But we have the mind of Christ." This statement signifies that as followers of Christ, we have been granted a special privilege and access to the wisdom and thoughts of Christ Himself. Through the indwelling of the Holy Spirit, believers are enabled to understand and align their thoughts with the mind of Christ.

Having the mind of Christ means that believers can have a renewed perspective and discernment in their thinking. It enables them to see situations, people, and circumstances from God's perspective and align their thoughts, attitudes, and actions with His will.

This verse is a reminder of the incredible privilege and responsibility that comes with being a follower of Christ. It encourages believers to seek wisdom and guidance from the mind of Christ, relying on the Holy Spirit's work within them to transform their thinking.

In summary, 1 Corinthians 2:16 highlights the incomprehensibility of God's mind and the limitations of human wisdom. It also emphasizes the unique privilege and access that believers have to the mind of Christ through the indwelling of the Holy Spirit. This verse serves as a reminder to seek alignment with Christ's thoughts and to rely on His wisdom in navigating life's challenges and decisions.

JOURNEY #4 - BIBLICAL HEALING

Faith is an essential aspect of the Christian religion. It is based on the belief that Jesus Christ is our perfect Savior, without sin, sickness, or blemish. The idea of Jesus being able to set us free from sin and sickness is a central theme in the Christian faith. Andrew Murray, a prominent Christian author, writes about Jesus' ability to deliver us from sin and sickness. According to Murray, "He is in a position to set us free from the one as well as the other, and that He may accomplish this deliverance He expects from us only one thing: our faith in Him." Indeed, faith in Jesus Christ is a fundamental aspect of the Christian faith.

The concept of healing through faith is a biblical one. It is supported by the direct words and healing acts of Jesus, as seen in Mark 5:34 and Luke 17:19. According to these passages, Jesus can heal believers through their faith in Him. Moreover, nothing is impossible for God through faith in Jesus Christ, according to Luke 1:37 and Matthew 19:26. These passages attest to the power of faith in Jesus Christ and its ability to heal those who believe in Him.

Isaiah 53:4 is a passage often cited in support of the idea that Jesus can heal us from sickness. The passage reads, "Surely he hath borne our sicknesses and carried our sorrows...My righteous servant shall justify many; for he shall bear their iniquities...He shall divide the spoil with the strong, because...he bare the sin of many." Murray's reference to "sickness" in Isaiah 53:4 is taken from his exegetical study of the Hebrew word used in that verse, khol-ee', which literally means "disease, grief, sickness." This supports Murray's interpretation of the passage.

While we believe that sickness is a consequence of the fall, we also recognize that we will never be perfect until we are glorified in Christ. As a result, we will continue to deal with illness and disease while living in this fallen nature and in this fallen world. However, we should never put God in a box when it comes to healing according to faith and His perfect will. It is essential to have faith in God to please Him, as stated in Hebrews 11:6. According to our faith, let it be done to us, as seen in Matthew 9:29. This passage shows the importance of faith in healing. Ultimately, God is in control, and we are blessed to have Him as our personal Lord and Savior. We must never presume that a person lacks faith simply because God does not heal them. God may have another purpose for allowing a person to go through an illness or physical ailment, as seen in John Chapter 9. As Christians, we should always keep this in mind. Ultimately, the completeness of Jesus bearing all our sickness, as declared in Isaiah 53, will come in the end when we are glorified with Him into eternity. In summary, faith in Jesus Christ is a powerful tool that can help believers overcome sickness and disease.

AT THE CRUCIFIXION

When Jesus died upon the cross, he endured a multitude of unimaginable hardships. The journey itself, filled with travel and struggle, would have been enough to make anyone turn back. However, it is important to recognize the profound significance of each step Jesus took towards the cross. His divine mission began long before his birth, but for our exploration, let us focus on the pivotal moment when he was in the garden praying. Despite his complete understanding of what lay ahead, Jesus humbly submitted to God's will and earnestly sought confirmation. His acceptance of the immense sacrifice he was about to make serves as a testament to his unwavering grace and devotion.

As Jesus embarked on the solemn walk with the soldiers to the courtroom, he displayed an unwavering resolve to endure whatever was required of him. This journey of carrying his own cross symbolizes the countless times that he labors alongside us, willingly shouldering our burdens if only we surrender them to him. Just as he bore the weight of the soldier's severed ear as an act of compassion, he takes on our burdens and carries them for miles untold. The shame, sin, hurt, pain, disappointment, sorrow, and grief that he willingly bore on our behalf are reflections of the very struggles we face in today's world.

Every action that unfolded on the cross, meticulously choreographed down to the tiniest detail, holds profound symbolism. Even the bitterness of the vinegar, which Jesus tasted, can represent the unforgiveness that often lingers in our hearts. The deliberate act of plucking his beard serves as a poignant reminder of the seemingly insignificant grievances that accumulate and relentlessly nag at us. It is a call to actively address and remove any offense that hinders our spiritual growth and inner peace.

In contemplating the tremendous sacrifice Jesus made upon the cross, we are invited to reflect on the depth of his love and the magnitude of his compassion. Through his suffering, he demonstrated an unparalleled willingness to bear the weight of our sins and sorrows. May we strive to emulate his example, embracing the transformative power of his sacrifice and finding solace in the knowledge that he carries our burdens and offers us redemption.

Significance of 4:

Jesus provided us with four significant things when He finished His work on the cross.

Firstly, He provided salvation for all humanity. Through His sacrifice, Jesus made it possible for every person to be forgiven of their sins and reconciled with God.

Secondly, He provided redemption. By shedding His blood on the cross, Jesus paid the price to redeem us from the bondage of sin and set us free.

Thirdly, He provided healing. Through His suffering and death, Jesus made a way for us to experience physical, emotional, and spiritual healing. By His wounds, we are healed.

Lastly, He provided eternal life. Through His resurrection, Jesus conquered death and offers the gift of eternal life to all who believe in Him.

In summary, Jesus' work on the cross provided salvation, redemption, healing, and eternal life for everyone who accepts Him as their Savior.

It is finished.

When Jesus uttered the powerful words, "It is finished," he was not merely announcing the end of his earthly life on the cross. Those three simple words carried profound significance that reverberate throughout history and touch the depths of our souls.

By declaring, "It is finished," Jesus was proclaiming the completion of his divine mission, the ultimate sacrifice that would forever change the course of humanity. In that moment, the sacrificial lamb had fulfilled its purpose, offering himself as the atonement for the sins of the world.

AT THE CRUCIFIXION

The significance of Jesus' declaration lies in the fact that his death on the cross was not a tragic accident or an unfortunate outcome of human cruelty. It was a deliberate and necessary act, ordained by God from the beginning of time. Jesus willingly laid down his life, bearing the weight of our sins and offering himself as the perfect sacrifice to reconcile humanity with God.

When Jesus said, "It is finished," he was affirming the completion of God's redemptive plan. Every prophecy, every promise, and every foreshadowing of his coming had been fulfilled in that moment. The sacrificial system of the Old Testament, with its countless offerings, had reached its ultimate fulfillment in Jesus' selfless act of love on the cross.

Through his death, Jesus provided salvation for all humanity. He paid the price for our sins, offering forgiveness and reconciliation with God to anyone who accepts him as their Savior. The sacrificial lamb had fulfilled its purpose, ushering in a new era of grace and mercy.

Moreover, when Jesus said, "It is finished," he was declaring victory over sin, death, and the powers of darkness. The sacrificial lamb had conquered the forces that held humanity in bondage, offering redemption and freedom to all who believe in him. His sacrifice opened the door to a restored relationship with God, breaking the chains of sin and granting us access to the abundant life he has promised.

The significance of Jesus' words extends beyond the cross. His death was not the end of the story, but rather the beginning of a glorious resurrection and the promise of eternal life. Through his triumph over death, Jesus offers the gift of eternal life to all who believe in him. The sacrificial lamb had conquered death, paving the way for us to experience the fullness of life in him.

So, when Jesus said, "It is finished," he was declaring the completion of a divine masterpiece, a symphony of love, sacrifice, and redemption. The sacrificial lamb had died, but its impact and significance continue to resonate throughout the ages, calling us to embrace the transformative power of Jesus' sacrifice and find solace in the knowledge that he has overcome the world.

Spiritual Crucifixion

When we delve into the concept of spiritual crucifixion in relation to the physical crucifixion, we uncover a profound connection between the two and the significant meanings they hold. The physical crucifixion of Jesus, with all its horrors and agonies, serves as a powerful foreshadowing of the spiritual crucifixion that believers must undergo.

Jesus willingly endured the unimaginable sacrifice on our behalf, ensuring that we would not have to bear the same depth of suffering that he did. His selfless act of love and redemption paved the way for our salvation. However, it is important to recognize that while we are spared from the physical torment that Jesus endured, we are called to embrace a spiritual crucifixion of our own.

This spiritual crucifixion requires us to possess a contrite and humble spirit, marked by sincere repentance. It is a journey of self-reflection, acknowledging our own shortcomings and sins, and seeking forgiveness and transformation. Just as Jesus willingly offered himself on the cross, we are called to willingly offer our hearts and lives to God, surrendering our old ways and embracing a new life in Christ.

In this spiritual crucifixion, we find a deep connection to the sacrifice of Jesus on the cross. It is through our own crucifixion, in the spiritual sense, that we are able to fully grasp the depth of Christ's love and sacrifice for us. It is through this process of surrender and transformation that we can experience true redemption and spiritual growth.

So, let us not only acknowledge the significance of the physical crucifixion but also embrace the spiritual crucifixion that Jesus calls us to. May we have the courage to confront our own weaknesses and sins, and may we have the humility to seek God's forgiveness and His guidance in our journey of spiritual crucifixion.

JESUS CHRIST: THE EXHAUSTIVE ANALYSIS AND UNDERSTANDING OF 6 HOURS OF AGONY AND DEMISE THROUGH CRUCIFIXION:

Jesus' crucifixion was a harrowing ordeal that involved immense physical suffering and torment. From the moment He was nailed to the cross, Jesus experienced excruciating pain in various parts of His body. The positioning of His knees at a 45-degree angle caused severe cramping in His thigh and calf muscles, making it incredibly challenging to bear the weight of His body. His wrists, elbows, and shoulders dislocated within minutes, further exacerbating the elevation of His chest wall and making breathing progressively more difficult.

As Jesus struggled to breathe, His movements to inhale and exhale caused intense pain in His wrists, feet, and dislocated joints. Despite growing fatigue, Jesus persisted in his efforts to breathe, fearing death by asphyxiation. The muscles in His lower limbs were subjected to excruciating cramps as He pushed down on His legs to exhale, all while maintaining a compromised position.

Throughout the crucifixion, Jesus endured not only physical agony but also emotional torment. His body was covered in a combination of blood from the severe scourging He had endured and sweat from his violent attempts to exhale air from His lungs. He remained completely naked, exposed to insults, mockery, and jeers from various individuals, including the Jewish leaders, the crowd, the thieves on either side of Him, and even His own mother.

Physiologically, Jesus' body underwent a series of catastrophic events. His compromised respiratory function led to low blood oxygen levels and high carbon dioxide levels, forcing His heart to beat faster and faster. Despite the desperate need for fluids, Jesus had not consumed any since the previous evening, and his severe dehydration caused a significant drop in blood pressure. By noon, His heart was beginning to fail, and his lungs were likely filling with fluid, further compromising his ability to breathe.

As Jesus's body continued to deteriorate, He experienced heart failure, respiratory failure, and the development of conditions such as hemopericardium and cardiac tamponade. Ultimately, His heart likely ruptured, leading to His death.

The soldiers placed a small wooden seat on the cross to prolong the process of death, but Jesus still endured six hours of unimaginable torture. When the soldiers arrived to break His legs, they discovered that Jesus was already deceased, fulfilling the prophecy that not a single bone in His body would be broken.

Through His excruciating sacrifice, Jesus offered ordinary people the opportunity for eternal salvation in Heaven. His willingness to endure such suffering demonstrates the depth of His love and the extent to which He was willing to go for the sake of humanity.

AT THE RESURRECTION

Once Jesus was placed in that borrowed tomb, the story continued. He lay there for 3 days, a period of anticipation and uncertainty. And then, on the third day, a miraculous event took place - the resurrection. This pivotal moment in the crucifixion story holds immense significance. It not only symbolizes the triumph over death but also serves as a beacon of hope for humanity.

As the borrowed tomb opened, revealing an empty space, it marked the beginning of a new chapter. The rolling of the stone, like a heavy burden being lifted, represented the removal of old limitations and the introduction of new possibilities. It was a profound moment of transformation, signifying that a new door had been opened for all.

The resurrection of Jesus also broke the yoke of bondage, freeing humanity from the chains of sin and death. It was a momentous victory, demonstrating the power of divine love and redemption. From the ladies in the garden, who witnessed the empty tomb, to the disciples who encountered the risen Jesus, every detail of the resurrection story adds depth and richness to the narrative.

In conclusion, the story of Jesus' resurrection is not just a mere footnote in the crucifixion story. It is a pivotal moment that holds immense theological and spiritual significance. It reminds us of the power of faith, the triumph of life over death, and the hope that springs eternal.

Spiritual Resurrection

Spiritual Resurrection is a profound and transformative experience that takes place when we make the conscious decision to move from a state of spiritual death to a vibrant and new life. This pivotal moment occurs when we invite Jesus into our hearts, wholeheartedly repent of our past sins, and turn away from our old ways.

Through this process of reconciliation, we are able to experience the powerful and cleansing effect of Jesus' blood shed on the cross. It is through His sacrifice that we are washed clean, liberated from the chains of sin, and set free to live a life of purpose and fulfillment.

Furthermore, Spiritual Resurrection also involves becoming active participants in the journey of the cross. It means embracing the teachings and example of Jesus, and allowing His transformative power to work within us. It is through this active participation that we are able to fully comprehend the depth of His love and the magnitude of His sacrifice.

In essence, Spiritual Resurrection is not just a one-time event, but an ongoing process of growth and renewal. It is a continuous journey of deepening our relationship with God, experiencing His grace and mercy, and allowing His Spirit to guide and shape our lives. It is through this process that we are able to truly live as transformed individuals, filled with hope, purpose, and the assurance of eternal life.

AT THE ASCENSION

After Jesus triumphantly rose from the tomb, He descended into the darkest depths of Hell, bravely journeying to retrieve the keys that held the power over death, Hell, and the grave. In a divine act of redemption, He reclaimed what Satan had cunningly stolen through the sinful disobedience of Adam and Eve. The kingdom, once shattered by the consequences of human transgression, was gloriously restored through Jesus' victorious mission.

As Jesus emerged from the depths, the keys now firmly in His grasp, their significance resonated deeply with Christians throughout the ages. These keys symbolize the unparalleled authority that Jesus, as the Son of God, has provided to His followers. They are a tangible representation of the inheritance bestowed upon believers, a portion of the divine power and authority that Jesus Himself possesses.

Today, these keys serve as a reminder and a source of empowerment for Christians, reminding them of their spiritual authority and the victory that Jesus secured on their behalf. With these keys in hand, believers are empowered to overcome the forces of darkness, to bind and loosen, to bring life and freedom to those who are trapped in the clutches of sin and despair.

Spiritual Ascension

Spiritual Ascension is an integral part of our journey, closely tied to Jesus' ascension and the principles of spiritual warfare. It is through this process that we reclaim our lives in a holistic manner, empowered by the authority bestowed upon us by Jesus Himself. As we engage in spiritual warfare, we tap into the transformative power of Jesus' authority, enabling us to overcome the forces of darkness and reclaim our true identity.

When Jesus triumphantly rose from the tomb, He descended into the depths of Hell, courageously retrieving the keys that held dominion over death, Hell, and the grave. In an awe-inspiring act of redemption, He reclaimed what had been cunningly stolen by Satan through the disobedience of Adam and Eve. This divine mission not only restored the shattered kingdom, but it also symbolized the unrivaled authority that Jesus, as the Son of God, has bestowed upon His followers.

These keys serve as a tangible representation of the inheritance bestowed upon believers - a portion of the divine power and authority that Jesus Himself possesses. They are a constant reminder of the victory Jesus secured on our behalf and the spiritual authority we now possess. With these keys in hand, we are empowered to bind and loosen, to bring life and freedom to those trapped in the clutches of sin and despair.

It is important to recognize that our spiritual ascension is not a solitary journey. Jesus, in His infinite wisdom and love, has not only given us the keys and authority but has also provided us with a comforter. This comforter, often understood as the Holy Spirit, guides and supports us as we navigate the challenges of spiritual warfare. With the Holy Spirit as our companion, we can walk confidently in our newfound authority, knowing that we are not alone in our battles.

As we participate in spiritual warfare and embrace our spiritual ascension, we are reminded of the profound truth that we are more than conquerors through Christ Jesus. Our lives are transformed as we align ourselves with His authority, allowing Him to work through us to bring about His purposes on earth. Through this process, we experience the fullness of life and the freedom that Jesus has won for us.

AT THE DAY OF PENTECOST

On the day of Pentecost, a significant event took place when the disciples and their families gathered together in the upper room. Their purpose was to receive a powerful gift from above, a gift that would transform their lives and empower them in extraordinary ways. This gift was none other than the power of the Holy Spirit.

As they eagerly waited, there was a sense of anticipation and excitement in the air. They longed for the promised power that would bring them enlightenment, revealing to them deep truths and insights that were previously unknown. They yearned for the gift of revelation, which would enable them to see with clarity and understanding. They desired the divine discernment that would guide their decisions and actions, helping them to navigate the challenges and complexities of life. And they sought the strength that would come from this power, empowering them to overcome obstacles and fulfill their purpose.

In that upper room, as they fervently prayed and sought the Lord, the Holy Spirit descended upon them. It was a momentous occasion, as they were filled with the power from on high. This power transformed them, emboldening them to boldly proclaim the message of salvation and to perform miraculous signs and wonders.

The day of Pentecost was not just an ordinary day; it was a day of divine intervention and supernatural empowerment. It marked the beginning of a new era, where the disciples were equipped with the tools they needed to fulfill their mission and spread the gospel to the ends of the earth.

Spiritual Pentecost

Spiritual Pentecost is a transformative experience that occurs when you accept salvation and receive the indwelling of God's spirit, known as the Holy Ghost. This precious gift was bestowed upon believers by Jesus himself before his departure, as a source of comfort and guidance. The Holy Ghost serves as a divine companion, leading and directing Christians, while also granting them the invaluable ability to discern between right and wrong.

At the moment of spiritual Pentecost, a profound change takes place within the heart and soul of the believer. They become vessels of God's power and presence, forever connected to the source of all wisdom and understanding. Through the Holy Ghost, they gain access to deep spiritual truths and insights that were previously inaccessible. This newfound revelation enables them to perceive the world with clarity and discernment, making wise choices and decisions in alignment with God's will.

Moreover, the Holy Ghost empowers Christians to navigate the complexities and challenges of life. With divine guidance, they are equipped to overcome obstacles and fulfill their purpose, no matter how daunting the circumstances may be. The Holy Ghost provides strength and courage, igniting a fire within believers to boldly proclaim the message of salvation and demonstrate the miraculous power of God.

In essence, the day of Pentecost marked a significant milestone in the spiritual journey of the disciples and all believers. It signified the beginning of a new era, where the empowering presence of the Holy Ghost revolutionized their lives and propelled them to spread the gospel to the ends of the earth. Today, spiritual Pentecost continues to be a life-changing encounter for those who accept God's gift of salvation and open their hearts to the transformative power of the Holy Ghost.

GIFT OF THE HOLY GHOST SPEAKING IN TONGUES

The gift of the Holy Ghost, also known as speaking in tongues or the baptism of the Holy Ghost, is a transformative experience that occurs when believers receive a prayer language of unknown utterances. This gift is bestowed upon individuals as they accept salvation and receive the indwelling of God's spirit, known as the Holy Ghost.

During the day of Pentecost, a significant event took place when the disciples and their families gathered together in the upper room. Their purpose was to receive a powerful gift from above, a gift that would transform their lives and empower them in extraordinary ways. This gift was none other than the power of the Holy Spirit.

And they sought the strength that would come from this power, empowering them to overcome obstacles and fulfill their purpose.

In that upper room, as they fervently prayed and sought the Lord, the Holy Spirit descended upon them. It was a momentous occasion, as they were filled with the power from on high. This power transformed them, emboldening them to boldly proclaim the message of salvation and to perform miraculous signs and wonders.

The gift of the Holy Ghost, often manifested through speaking in tongues, is a unique prayer language of unknown utterances. It is a gift that enables believers to communicate with God in a special way, beyond the limitations of their natural language. This prayer language is not understood by the intellect, but it is a direct communion between the believer's spirit and the Holy Spirit.

When someone receives the gift of the Holy Ghost and begins to speak in tongues, it is an indication that they are being filled with the power and presence of God. This experience is often accompanied by a deep sense of peace, joy, and spiritual connection. It is a manifestation of the Holy Spirit at work within the believer, strengthening their faith and deepening their relationship with God.

Speaking in tongues is not meant to be a display of superiority or a requirement for salvation. Instead, it is a personal and intimate form of worship and communication with God. It allows believers to express their love, adoration, and surrender to God in a way that transcends human language.

In essence, the gift of the Holy Ghost, including the experience of speaking in tongues, is a remarkable manifestation of the presence and power of God in the lives of believers. It is a gift that brings about transformation, empowerment, and a deeper connection with the divine. Just as the disciples were empowered on the day of Pentecost, believers today can also receive this gift and experience the life-changing power of the Holy Ghost.

THE HEALING WITHIN

Natural Health Philosophy is a holistic approach to health that emphasizes the body's innate ability to heal itself. This healing process, or "the healing within", is supported by maintaining the body's internal order, which is sometimes referred to as the "eternal clock". Each system in the human body plays a role in maintaining this order, and every cell requires certain materials from the surrounding body fluids to function optimally. These fluids are affected by our lifestyle choices, including what we eat, how we exercise, and what we drink.

The health of the body is influenced by a variety of factors, including our lifestyle choices, environment, mental state, and more. For example, stress can have a negative impact on our body's ability to heal itself. It is important to seek guidance from doctors and natural health consultants, but their advice will only be effective if we make an effort to follow it.

In addition to making healthy choices, there are other ways to support the body's natural healing processes. For example, practicing mindfulness and meditation can help reduce stress and improve mental well-being. Getting enough sleep is also essential for supporting the body's natural rhythms and healing processes.

Ultimately, taking care of our well-being is our own responsibility. By making conscious choices about our lifestyle and seeking guidance when needed, we can support our body's innate ability to heal itself and live a healthy, fulfilling life.

FORGIVENESS & HEALING

In the Bible, we see that man is composed of three different natures: the spiritual, the mental or emotional, and the physical. This three-part system is a complex one that makes us both children of God and vulnerable to destruction due to the Fall of Man. Evidence of this can be seen in the presence of sin in our souls and sicknesses in our bodies. However, divine grace has redeemed this three-fold nature, and there is still much to be said about our journey towards wholeness.

The psalmist recognizes the complexity of our being and calls upon all that is within him to bless the Lord for His many benefits. He cries out, "Bless the Lord, O my soul, who... forgives all your iniquities, who heals all your diseases" (Ps. 103:3). Similarly, Isaiah foretells the deliverance of his people and says, "The inhabitant shall not say, 'I am sick'; the people that dwell therein shall be forgiven their iniquity" (Isa. 33:24).

These predictions were fulfilled beyond all expectation when Jesus the Redeemer came down to this earth. Jesus was sent to establish the kingdom of heaven on earth, and he did so by healing the sick. Whether by his own acts or by the commands which he left for his disciples, he made it clear that the preaching of the Gospel and the healing of the sick went together in the salvation he came to bring. Both are given as evidence of his mission as the Messiah: "The blind receive their sight, and the lame walk..., and the poor have the Gospel preached to them" (Matt. 11:5).

In fact, Jesus dealt with healing as one of the graces belonging to the kingdom of heaven. Sin in the soul and sickness in the body both bear witness to the power of Satan, and "the Son of God was manifested that He might destroy the works of the devil" (I John 3:8). Everywhere Jesus healed the sick, everywhere he demonstrated his power to deliver men from sin and sickness.

The story of the paralytic is a great example of this truth. In the story, forgiveness came first, and then healing. The Lord Jesus begins by saying to him, "Thy sins be forgiven thee," after which he adds, "Arise and walk." The pardon of sin and the healing of sickness complete one the other, for in the eyes of God, who sees our entire nature, sin and sickness are as closely united as the body and the soul.

FORGIVENESS & HEALING

It is true that healing is not given in this day as in those times, to the multitudes whom Christ healed without any previous conversion. In order to receive it, it is necessary to begin by confessing one's sins and making a commitment to live a holy life. However, those who receive healing receive at the same time new spiritual blessings and feel more closely united to the Lord Jesus. This is why they learn to love and serve Him better. Unbelief may attempt to separate these two gifts, but they are always united in Christ. He is always the same Savior - of the spirit, soul, and of the body, equally ready to grant pardon and healing. Therefore, the redeemed may always cry out: "Bless the Lord, O my soul..., who forgiveth all your iniquities, who heals all your diseases" (Ps. 103:3).

In conclusion, the threefold nature of man -spirit, soul, and body- is a complex system that makes us both children of God and prone to destruction. However, through divine grace, we can be redeemed. Jesus came to establish the kingdom of heaven on earth and did so by healing the sick, which goes together with the preaching of the Gospel in the salvation he came to bring. Healing is one of the graces belonging to the kingdom of heaven and is given to those who begin by confessing their sins and committing to live a holy life. Those who receive healing also receive new spiritual blessings and feel more closely united to the Lord Jesus, which enables them to love and serve Him better.

BECAUSE OF YOUR UNBELIEF

The King James Bible, "verily I say unto you, If ye have faith as a grain of mustard seed, ye shall say unto this mountain, Remove hence to yonder place; and it shall remove; and nothing shall be impossible unto you." - Matthew 17:20

The power of faith is in our beliefs. Our faith is centered on our belief in God as the one true God and in Jesus as our Savior. When we truly believe these things, our body, soul, and spirit work together seamlessly. This belief is the foundation of our lives, and when we doubt it, we can feel emotions that can lead to long-term diseases. Doubt and anxiety are not of God, and He wants us to experience peace and joy. We can only do that when we believe the truths of the Bible and live by its principles.

1 Timothy 2:1-7, Paul reminds us that there is only one God and one Mediator who can bring us together—the man Christ Jesus. He gave his life to purchase freedom for everyone. This is the core of the Christian faith, and we can only experience the freedom and inner peace that Jesus tells us about in John 8:32 when we fully believe it.

If we doubt that Jesus died for our sins and that belief in Him is the only way to enter God's kingdom eternally, we will not experience the deep peace that He wants us to have. Doubt can lead to thoughts that are contrary to God's Word, and the anxiety that we experience can release unhealthy chemicals into our body. Over the long term, our emotional and physical health will likely be affected.

If you have any doubts about Jesus being the only way to the one God, humbly ask God to help you come to absolute belief in the fact that He alone sent His son Jesus to die for you. Remember that God loves you so much that He wants you to enjoy eternal life with Him and a full and healthy life while you are on this earth.

Unbelief is a refusal to believe, often caused by loving darkness more than light. Sin has caused us to love the wrong things, such as ourselves, money, or pleasure, over Jesus. To follow Him, we must deny ourselves and love God and others above all else.

JOURNEY #5 - SPIRITUAL MEDICINE

Welcome to Journey #5 - Spiritual Medicine! In this journey, we will delve deeply into God's word and explore its specific scriptures through verse mapping, note-taking, and studying the meanings, definitions, and commentary notes of the words within the scriptures.

As a visual learner, I use sticky notes for just about everything - whether it's color coding or creating web diagrams. By doing so, I'm able to better understand and remember what I've learned.

Through this journey, I invite you to join me in a detailed meditation of God's word. Let's explore its richness and deepen our understanding of it together. I believe that by doing so, we will gain insight into the mysteries of God and discover the spiritual medicine that our souls need.

So, let's begin this journey together!

SCRIPTURES RELATED TO HEALTH & WHOLENESS

This is a list of various Bible verses that pertain to health and well-being. Some of the verses encourage physical wellness, while others emphasize spiritual well-being or the connection between the two. The specific interpretations and implications of these verses may vary depending on the individual's beliefs and context.

This is a list of Bible verses from the Old and New Testaments. Each verse contains a message of hope, comfort, or guidance for the reader. The verses encourage the reader to trust in God, seek his wisdom, and find peace in his promises. They also remind the reader to care for their physical and emotional well-being, and to live a life that honors God.

1 Corinthians 6:19-20 is a passage from the New Testament of the Bible. It reads: "Do you not know that your bodies are temples of the Holy Spirit, who is in you, whom you have received from God? You are not your own; you were bought at a price. Therefore honor God with your bodies."

Romans 12:1 is a Bible verse that reads: "Therefore, I urge you, brothers and sisters, in view of God's mercy, to offer your bodies as a living sacrifice, holy and pleasing to God—this is your true and proper worship."

These are references to Bible verses.

1 Timothy 4:7-9 encourages physical and spiritual training, saying that it has value in both this life and the next.

Proverbs 14:30 says that a peaceful mind is healthy, but jealousy and envy can rot the bones.

Proverbs 3:7-8 advises that we should not be wise in our own eyes, but instead fear the Lord and turn away from evil. This will bring health to our body and nourishment to our bones.

Psalm 63:5 expresses a desire for God, saying that the speaker's soul is satisfied as with the richest of foods.

This is a selection of Bible verses:

2 Corinthians 5:17 - "Therefore, if anyone is in Christ, the new creation has come: The old has gone, the new is here!"

Exodus 15:26 - "He said, 'If you listen carefully to the Lord your God and do what is right in his eyes, if you pay attention to his commands and keep all his decrees, I will not bring on you any of the diseases I brought on the Egyptians, for I am the Lord, who heals you.'"

Isaiah 40:29-31 - "He gives strength to the weary and increases the power of the weak. Even youths grow tired and weary, and young men stumble and fall; but those who hope in the Lord will renew their strength. They will soar on wings like eagles; they will run and not grow weary, they will walk and not be faint."

SCRIPTURES RELATED TO HEALTH & WHOLENESS

Psalm 145:15-16 - "The eyes of all look to you, and you give them their food at the proper time. You open your hand and satisfy the desires of every living thing."
Psalm 107:19-20 - "Then they cried to the Lord in their trouble, and he saved them from their distress. He sent out his word and healed them; he rescued them from the grave."
Proverbs 3:7-8 - "Do not be wise in your own eyes; fear the Lord and shun evil. This will bring health to your body and nourishment to your bones."
Isaiah 58:11 - "The Lord will guide you always; he will satisfy your needs in a sun-scorched land and will strengthen your frame. You will be like a well-watered garden, like a spring whose waters never fail."
Job 12:10 - "In his hand is the life of every creature and the breath of all mankind."
Exodus 23:25 - "Worship the Lord your God, and his blessing will be on your food and water. I will take away sickness from among you."
Proverbs 17:22 - "A cheerful heart is good medicine, but a crushed spirit dries up the bones."
Proverbs 13:12 - "Hope deferred makes the heart sick, but a longing fulfilled is a tree of life."
Proverbs 15:15 - "All the days of the oppressed are wretched, but the cheerful heart has a continual feast."
Proverbs 18:14 - "The human spirit can endure in sickness, but a crushed spirit who can bear?"
Psalm 147:3 - "He heals the brokenhearted and binds up their wounds."
Isaiah 19:22 - "The Lord will strike Egypt with a plague; he will strike them and heal them. They will turn to the Lord, and he will respond to their pleas and heal them."
These are Bible verses from the Old and New Testaments of the Christian Bible. The verses are:
1 Timothy 4:3-5 - Discusses false teachings and the importance of receiving God's word with thanksgiving.
Isaiah 46:3-4 - God promises to care for his people from the time of their birth until they are old and gray.
Isaiah 53:4-5 - Prophecy about the coming of a suffering servant who will bear the sins of the people and bring them healing.
Jeremiah 30:12-14,17 - Prophecy about the restoration of Israel and the punishment of their enemies.

IDENTITY IN CHRIST

Once we obtain salvation, it is of utmost importance that we not only embrace the gift of eternal life but also actively engage in the ongoing pursuit of spiritual growth and transformation. This pursuit can be achieved through a steadfast dedication to studying and meditating on the word of God. By immersing ourselves in His truth, we not only deepen our understanding of who we are in Christ but also uncover the vast array of promises that He has specifically designed for us.

As we delve into the depths of God's word, we begin to grasp the magnitude of our identity in Christ. We realize that we are not just ordinary individuals, but we have been chosen and adopted into God's family. We are His beloved children, handpicked to be joint heirs with Jesus Christ. This incredible reality should ignite a passion within us to live a life that is worthy of our divine calling.

Furthermore, studying the word of God opens our eyes to the abundant blessings and inheritances that await us in Him. We begin to understand that our expected end is not one of despair or hopelessness, but rather a future filled with hope, purpose, and destiny. We are no longer slaves to sin but have been set free to live a life of righteousness and victory.

Understanding our place within the kingdom of God empowers us to live a life that is pleasing to Him. We were created to worship Him with our whole being, to honor and obey His commandments, and to stand firmly on the unshakable foundation of His promises. As we do so, we become vessels through which His kingdom is manifested here on earth. We become conduits of His love, grace, and power, impacting the lives of those around us and transforming our communities.

In conclusion, the journey of salvation does not end with a mere acknowledgment of faith. It is a lifelong pursuit of knowing and experiencing the fullness of our identity in Christ. By immersing ourselves in the word of God and embracing our place within His kingdom, we not only discover our true purpose but also unleash the limitless potential that lies within us. Let us, therefore, commit ourselves to the diligent study of God's word, allowing it to shape and transform us into the image of Christ.

SPIRIT OF HEAVINESS

To the person who is sitting on the edge of their despair, feeling overwhelmed, hopeless, misunderstood, & weak. I want you to know that you are not alone in this journey. You are seen and you are cherished by the Lord. Your worth is immeasurable and you possess an abundance of strength within you. That strength isn't your strength but it's the Lord's. The Lord desires to uplift and guide you, so I encourage you to lift up your head and seek His help and direction. Even in the midst of your pain and sorrow, embrace the power of praise and worship, directing it towards Him. In His presence, you will discover an abundance of joy & comfort that will uplift your spirit, soul, & body.

I want to take a moment to assure you that I have been praying for you & so has Jesus. He knows your name. During my prayers, I have a declaration for you rising up with your hands lifted high in a gesture of victory. It is a profound image that portrays your declaration of triumph over the challenges you are facing, acknowledging His strength, comfort, & joy. Therefore, I implore you to allow worship to be your guiding light out of the darkness & His word dividing the truth rightfully. Remember that the One who resides within you is greater than any obstacle you may encounter. Place your trust in Him & permit Him to fight your battles on your behalf. With Him by your side, you will undoubtedly emerge victorious.

I encourage you to go into your prayer closet, that secret place with the Lord & converse with Him. I urge you to seek His face through the pain, depression, & disappointment. Look through it to see Jesus face. Keep seeking His face until He comes into your presence & begins to open the pathway to the brain to release the manifestation of your heart healing.

SPIRIT OF HEAVINESS

🙏 Lord, I humbly pray for those who find themselves in the depths of despair, hopelessness, anxiety, and heaviness. Forgive us all for our doubt. Forgive us of unforgiveness towards others. Forgive us for being weary. Forgive us for not putting our confidence in you. We rebuke the spirit of depression in the mighty name of Jesus. We rebuke the spirit of heaviness in the name of Jesus. We rebuke the root of the offense in the name of Jesus. We bind them all in the name of Jesus. We cast them out of our minds, releasing the root from the hypothalamus, casting them off our flesh & the health side affects from our physical bodies in the name of Jesus. We loose them & all of their affiliations & afflictions to the feet of Jesus for him to deal with them, into outer darkness, never to return in the name of Jesus. We loose the spirit of praise, the spirit of truth, the spirit of adoption in the name of Jesus. Let us adorn ourselves with the garment of praise, as it is in Your presence that we find complete joy. Your joy is our source of strength. May our praises and worship be a catalyst for Your abundant anointing of joy to overflow in our lives. Help us recognize that You are the ultimate source of our help. It is in our weakness that Your strength shines brightest. We thank You for the peace that surpasses all understanding. We choose to forgive others of our trespasses as we choose to forgive ourselves. We choose to allow the spirit of praise to bring us into the bosom of God to draw from His strength & joy. We choose to allow the spirit of adoption to in graft us in. We choose to allow the spirit of truth to remind us who we are in Christ. We pray for clarity, a clear vision of direction of where, what, how we should proceed in our lives from this moment on under the guidance of the Holy Ghost. In the name of Jesus, we pray. Amen.

📖 Isaiah 61:3 📖 Psalm 121:2

BE STRONG

Joshua 1:5"There shall not any man be able to stand before thee all the days of thy life: as I was with Moses, so I will be with thee: I will not fail thee, nor forsake thee."

Joshua 1:6"Be strong and of a good courage: for unto this people shalt thou divide for an inheritance the land, which I sware unto their fathers to give them."

These scriptures are powerful evidence of God's immense strength. It is crucial for us to firmly embrace His word, upholding His divine standards and unwaveringly relying on His promises. It is important to remember that God remains constant and steadfast. His word is not just a static text, but a living and dynamic word that encompasses sacrifice, salvation, justification, supplication, and the promise of an eternal inheritance. As we meditate on these truths, we are reminded of the incredible depth and richness found within the scriptures, which offer guidance, encouragement, and hope to all who seek a deeper relationship with God.

Just as God stood by Moses and supported him throughout his entire life, we can be assured that God will also stand by us. It is not by our own self-confidence that we stand, but by placing our trust in God's confidence. It is crucial for us to understand that when we remain connected to Christ, He will also remain connected to us. Our confidence and integrity are rooted in God; we are simply mortal beings created to worship and serve as instruments in God's ministry. In recognizing this truth, we can find reassurance and strength in our faith journey.

So stand firm with the full Armor of God, knowing that if He brought Moses out of difficult situations and helped David conquer his enemies, then He is capable of doing even more for us. Stand firm in the Armor that God has graciously provided for you, equipped with the belt of truth, the breastplate of righteousness, the shoes of the gospel of peace, the shield of faith, the helmet of salvation, and the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God. By putting on this Armor and relying on God's strength, we can confidently face any challenges that come our way and experience His abundant blessings in our lives.

If you don't have the armor on or don't know how to, I encourage you to seek the word of God, be genuine in your prayer life, study to show yourself approved, and know where your confidence lies and in whom it lies.

THE CROWN AT THE CROSS & THE HELMET OF SALVATION (TRUTH PERSPECTIVE)

The Crown at the Cross & the Helmet of Salvation (Truth Perspective)The crown of Jesus and the helmet of salvation hold a deep and profound connection with each other, intertwining symbolism, spirituality, and purpose. The crown, a symbol of authority and kingship, represents Jesus' divine sovereignty and his role as the King of Kings. It signifies his reign over all creation and his rightful place as the ruler of heaven and earth. The crown serves as a visual reminder of Jesus' power and majesty, reflecting his divine nature and the honor bestowed upon him as the Son of God. On the other hand, the helmet of salvation, represents a different aspect of spirituality and warfare. It symbolizes the importance of the perspective of truth but true salvation unto repentance and righteousness in the midst of spiritual battles. Just as a physical helmet protects the head and provides a safeguard for the mind, the helmet of salvation shields us from the lies and deceptions of the enemy by the authority of Jesus, the blood from the cross. It stands as a defense against the attacks and temptations that seek to distort and manipulate the truth. In a profound way, the crown and the helmet of salvation with a perspective of truth intertwine to convey a powerful message. They remind us of the significance of living in alignment with God's truth and purpose. The crown emphasizes the authority and kingship of Jesus, while the helmet of truth highlights the necessity of protecting our minds and hearts with the truth of God's Word, and Jesus blood. When we wear the crown of Jesus and put on the helmet of salvation, we are not only acknowledging Jesus as our King, but also embracing the responsibility to live in truth and righteousness. It is a call to walk in integrity, to stand firm against the schemes of the enemy, and to pursue a life of alignment with God's divine plan. In conclusion, the crown of Jesus and the helmet of salvation are intricately connected, reflecting the depth of their symbolism and the profound spiritual truths they represent. They serve as powerful reminders of our identity in Christ and the importance of living in truth and righteousness. May we always wear the crown of Jesus and put on the helmet of salvation with the perspective of truth, knowing that in doing so, we are aligning ourselves with the ultimate source of authority and protection. Bind your mind to the mind of Christ. Guard Up! Be ready for Battle! Be ready to not receive the thoughts of the lying spirits! I pray in Jesus name that your ears only ear the voice of God. I pray your mind perceives the word of God. I pray your heart believes God's words. I pray you learn to Guard Up, and to be Battle Ready for the coming of the Lord is drawing nigh & the devil's darts will most likely become swifter & deadlier. In Jesus name. May your perspective change to see the truth. In Jesus name.

AFFIRMATIONS

Affirming God's Word over yourself and others is not only crucial but also transformative, as it has the power to infuse life into your spirit, body, and soul. It is essential to internalize the forthcoming scriptures and recognize the significance of verbalizing them daily. By speaking out positive affirmations, you actively combat the words of the enemy, breaking free from the chains of negativity and bondage. When you audibly declare the promises and truths that God has spoken, your faith becomes more tangible and accessible. In fact, hearing yourself proclaim God's Word out loud every day has a profound impact on your spirit, surpassing the effect of simply listening to others speak it.

Allowing the Word of God to resound in your voice, day after day, for a continuous period of thirty days holds the potential to revolutionize your life. It ignites a transformative journey where faith is deepened, strengthened, and firmly rooted in your being. As the apostle Paul wrote, "So then faith comes by hearing, and hearing by the word of God" (Romans 10:17). Embracing this practice of speaking God's Word will not only shape your spiritual landscape but also permeate every aspect of your existence, bringing about lasting change and abundant blessings.

DECLARATIONS

I confidently declare and proclaim, with unwavering faith and conviction, that through the power of God, the battle is not only fought but already won. As stated in the sacred scriptures of 1 Samuel 17:47, I firmly believe that victory is assured and secured through His divine intervention.

Moreover, I declare and affirm with utmost certainty that my God, in His infinite wisdom and providence, is diligently preserving and safeguarding what He has specifically ordained for me. He will undoubtedly lead me into the fulfillment of His divine purpose and plan for my life. This divine assurance is reinforced by the profound words found in Malachi 3:11, Joshua 1:1-6, Psalms 140:4, and Ephesians 2:10, which serve as constant reminders of His unwavering commitment to guide and protect His chosen ones.

In addition, I boldly and joyfully declare that we have emerged victorious! The triumphant declaration proclaimed in 1 Corinthians 15:57-58 resounds within my spirit, resonating with the assurance that we have overcome every obstacle, every challenge, and every trial through the power of Christ. This divine victory is not fleeting or temporary but everlasting and eternal.

Deep within my heart, I firmly believe and hold fast to the truth that God's Word is infallible and unchanging. The Word He has sent forth will never return void but will accomplish its intended purpose. As Isaiah 55:11 beautifully expresses, I have complete confidence that every promise, every prophecy, and every word spoken by God will be fulfilled in due time.

Furthermore, I boldly declare that God has anointed us to do His will. With divine empowerment and authority bestowed upon us, as stated in Hebrews 13:21, we are called and equipped to carry out His divine purpose with passion, wisdom, and excellence. This anointing enables us to fulfill our God-given destiny and make a significant impact in the world around us.

I joyfully and gratefully declare that God has not only given us divine healing but also divine life. His loving and compassionate nature is revealed through the miraculous healings depicted in Matthew 8:2-3 and the profound sacrifice of Jesus Christ as outlined in Isaiah 53:5. I embrace this divine gift and confidently walk in the fullness of His healing power and abundant life.

With anticipation and expectation, I eagerly await God's overflowing mercy and grace to be poured out upon me today. Drawing strength and comfort from the beautiful words of Lamentations 3:22-23, I know that His loving-kindness and compassion knows no bounds. I humbly receive His unmerited favor and blessings, fully aware of His divine plan and purpose for my life, as promised in Psalms 5:12 and Jeremiah 29:11.

In unwavering faith, I boldly proclaim that I will live and not die, and I will continually declare the marvelous works of the Lord. Embracing the empowering words of Psalms 118:17, I confidently testify of His goodness, faithfulness, and miraculous interventions in my life and the lives of those around me.

Finally, I firmly believe and hold fast to the truth that God has bestowed upon me His abundant life. This life is not limited or restricted but overflowing with His love, joy, peace, and all the blessings that come from a deep and intimate relationship with Him. As the profound words of John 10:10 affirm, I confidently embrace and enjoy the fullness of life that God has graciously provided.

In conclusion, I wholeheartedly affirm that declarations of faith and trust in God's promises are not mere words but powerful affirmations that shape our perspective, strengthen our faith, and align our hearts with the divine will. However, it is important to acknowledge that these declarations are most effective when we are in right-standing with the Lord, humbly yielding to His guidance, and living in accordance with His Word.
